What of Electric Iron?
30 Divorces Per Hour.
Lodge on the Ether.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

BERLIN HAS proved that it pays to TRY public ownership, even if you do not keep at it. Berlin's electric light and power companies, owned by the people, have been sold to private individuals, including American investors, for $132,000,000. In addition the city gets $7,000,000 of the company's stock and one-half of its excess profits, that is, all profits above a normal return on the investment.

That will seem rather bolshevistic to our private power companies at home. Think of paying for a public monopoly, then giving the citizens a share in the company, and half of the excess profits.

That is worthy of Lenin and Stalin, at their worst.

THE AMERICAN Iron and Steel Institute shows that Pennsylvania is still the great iron state, exceeding all others in production of finished rolled iron and steel. Fourteen million eight hundred sixty thousand three hundred sixty tons was last year's Pennsylvania production.

It would be interesting to know what progress has been made in ELECTRIC production of steel, in which Judge Gary was much interested, at the time of his death.

"Big Steel" might let us know about that.

THE ELECTRIC method of producing steel, less expensive, requiring less high temperature, and producing a steel far superior to the usual kind, almost rust proof, would change the steel industry, as coal and ore found together in Pennsylvania changed and destroyed the old system of smelting ore from bogs, with charcoal for fuel.

The electric process using ores now worthless, including iron sands that abound along the Pacific, might transfer steel supremacy to the Pacific Coast.

IT IS SAID that one good idea, one great invention, would change the world from depression to prosperity overnight. The world was in despair after Waterloo. The invention of steam started everything going, increased population by 500 per cent, multiplied the value of industry by one thousand.

Who will produce the one idea?

RENO, NEV., has solved part of its problems, while the rest of the world has talked, with a divorce idea. The divorces now average one every ten minutes.

Each represents six weeks of residence by "liberal spenders." A man anxious to get rid of a wife is more liberal than he was at the start.

Lawyers collect large fees, which remain in Nevada, and while the six weeks' legal residence drags along, visitors leave much of their money in gambling houses that the law encourages, or ignores.

However, that is only changing money from one pocket to another. It creates nothing new, and while it may help Nevada, it will not help the nation at large.

A MICROBE, living inside of a 50,000-ton steamship, goes about its little affairs, using its tiny fraction of energy, never dreaming of the greater power at work in the ship's engines.

Have you read Sir Oliver Lodge's intensely interesting and important theory as to the ether, which he looks upon as our cosmic source of power, entirely beyond our feeble minds? We are the microbes.

UNLIKE HERBERT SPENCER, Lodge believes in immortality for human beings, even immortality of personality and character. That is pleasanter for common minds than Spencer's cold decision, at the end of his life:

"My intellect forbids me to expect anything but annihilation."

Annihilation is such a DISCOURAGING word.

SIR OLIVER LODGE'S conclusion, "based on elementary facts" is that personality, including character and memory, is a persistent reality. How pleasant to believe that you will wake up in another world, and say:

"Hello, here I am again. I wonder where the family is."

Sir Oliver's statement concerning the ether and its nature, whether it convinces you or not, is that of a great scientist. For an ordinary man to contradict him, on science, would be like a Maltese kitten telling Edison:

"You don't know anything about electricity."

LODGE'S STATEMENT in full you may read in his little book, "Beyond Physics," inexpensive, published in England by Allen & Unwin. If Lodge is right, the ether interests you, for everything, including our important selves, must be explained in connection with the local central fact and force THE ETHER OF SPACE.

Ten per cent of those that see this column will not be bored by the following rather long quotation and 10 per cent, in this case means two or three millions:

"It (ether) fills all space, though we have no real knowledge of its constitution, for it is too fundamental to have its constitution expressible in terms of anything else."

(In other words, we could no more understand the ether than a microbe in the ship's cheese box could understand a Diesel engine.)

"It seems to be analogous to a perfect incompressible field in a violent state of circulatory motion, imperfectly conceivable as ultra-microscopic

Parrot Fever Blamed for Death

WOMAN HERE BELIEVED VICTIM

Two Love Birds Undergo Tests for Disease Trace; Two Other Cases Probed

Psittacosis, commonly called parrot fever, is believed to have caused the death of Mrs. Ella May Weiss, of 1918 Buena Vista street, in the Passavant Hospital, April 16, physicians said today.

Two "love birds," a small species of parrot, which Mrs. Weiss and her husband brought back from Florida a few weeks ago, are under examination at the hospital for traces of the dread disease, Dr. J. B. Gold, who attended the woman, said today. So far they have not shown symptoms of the malady.

The husband, Harry C. Weiss, taken ill at the same time as his wife, has recovered completely.

Mrs. Weiss' illness was diagnosed as pneumonia, a complication which always exists in psittacosis, Dr. Gold said. It was only after Dr. Gold, Dr. A. H. Colwell and Dr. I. H. Alexander, puzzled by peculiar symtoms of the case, started an investigation, that the parrot fever angle was uncovered.

DIAGNOSIS UNCERTAIN

Dr. Gold said that while he could not be certain until examination of the birds was completed, he was inclined to believe the infection, if psittacosis, came from birds now in the possession of Mrs. Weiss' sister, who lives in Philadelphia.

Two other deaths—those of Mrs. Anna Linder Wiegand, of 1966 West Beckert avenue, Reserve Township, and her father, Joseph J. Lindner, 61, of 836 Lovett way—were being investigated by health officials today to deter-

'World Too Heavily Armed For Peace to Last,' Hoover Warns

By GEORGE E. DURNO

WASHINGTON, May 4.—(INS.)—President Hoover, opening the sixth general congress of the International Chamber of Commerce here today, sounded a warning note that the world is far too heavily armed to insure continuance of peace.

Even though 12 years have passed since the armistice, and virtually every nation is a signatory to the Kellogg-Briand pact renouncing war, Mr. Hoover cited the following statistics on armaments:

"The world expenditure on all arms is now nearly five billions of dollars yearly, an increase of about 70 per cent over that previous to the great war. We stand today with near 5,500,000 men actively under arms and 20,000,000 more in reserve. These vast forces, greatly exceeding those of the pre-war period, still are to be demobilized because of fear and of inability of nations to co-operate in mutual reductions."

BURDEN ON PROSPERITY

Referring to the Kellogg-Briand pact, the President pleaded:

"Surely, with this understanding, the self defense of nations could be assured with proportionately far less military forces than these. This vast armament continues not only a burden upon the economic re-

U. S. CURBING FOKKER PLANES

WASHINGTON, May 4.—(INS.)—Air transport operators who are now using a particular series of tri-motor Fokker airplanes have been requested to suspend their use for passenger carrying until such time as the Department of Commerce and experts of the Fokker company may inspect them for present conditions of maintenance, Assistant Secretary Clarence M. Young announced today.

This action grew out of the aircraft disaster in which Knute Rockne and seven others were killed some time ago. Young said there were 35 of these planes of the so-called F-10-A type, which were manufactured in 1929.

Anthony Fokker, head of the Fokker company, was in conference with Young and is collaborating with the department in the study.

SUNDAY BALL VOTE DELAY SOUGHT

Liberals' Ranks Reduced By Members' Attendance At Woodward Funeral

By ED PRENDERGAST
Staff Correspondent.

HARRISBURG, May 4.—Anti-blue law forces this afternoon were attempting to obtain a delay in the vote on the Schwartz Sunday baseball bill, scheduled for tonight.

The postponement was sought, it was reported, because the Liberal advocates fear they will fall short of the necessary votes required for passage.

STEEDLE DETAINED

Representative Joseph G. Steedle, of Allegheny County, who last week flew by plane to Harrisburg to help put through the Sunday baseball amendment to the orginal Schwartz milk bill, is detained at his home because of the death of his father, it was pointed out, and in addition several other Western Pennsylvania legislators are being held over in Pittsburgh today by the funeral of Secretary of Internal Affairs James F. Woodward. The votes of Steedle and the others, it was pointed out, represented the margin between victory and defeat.

On the other hand, the Blue Law advocates were reported to be holding out no quarter to their opponents and insisting that the vote should be taken as scheduled, thereby following up their advantage.

CLOSE FIGHT SEEN

So close is the lineup of blue law and liberal forces that one or two votes will swing the issue either way. Blue law proponents said today they had won back two votes of the 103 listed for the baseball amendment last week. This would, if conditions were the same, make a 101-101 tie.

Liberals point out that they hope to get representatives Weide-

Irish Farmers Get Their Farms; Sympathy Due

—By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER—

Irish farmers finally own their own land.

Now they have to fight for more centuries to keep 'em.

Boys, it ain't bad to have a landlord when the roof is leaking or the barn needs a coat of paint. When the crops fail and the cow goes dry it's lots of fun writing the sad news to the absentee owner.

We concede its a great satisfaction to walk over your own ground and say, "This is mine." Also to point at a tree and say, "That's mine, too."

But if you don't step into a gopher hole and twist your ankle you are sure to have a tree-sitter fall on your head and break all your collar buttons.

Farming is a hazardous occupation with very little return. There are no refunds on a drought. We much prefer the urban predatory system of agriculture.

Live in the city all week. On Sunday you organize your motor punitive expedition. Crank up, drive out into the country, pull up all the shrubs and vegetables and then rush back to the city again with your rumble full of fresh country marketing.

PRIMA DONNA EDITH MASON

PRIMA DONNA MAY REMARRY

CHICAGO, May 4.—(INS.)—Edith Mason and Giorgia Polacco may be remarried, according to their friends here today.

This information followed quickly the revelation of Miss Mason's secret divorce April 14 in Dallas, Tex., from Dr. Maurice A. Bernstein, of Chicago, whom she married after divorcing Polacco.

Friends of both here were confident that the singer's second divorce had paved the way for a renewal of the romance of the two great musical celebrities, both of whom are expected to return to the Chicago Civic Opera next fall.

C. R. Miller, of Dallas, at whose home Miss Mason stayed for several months after going there last September, was quoted as saying the singer was now in Genoa, Italy, on her way to Milan, to get her daughter, Graziella, who had been staying with Polacco.

T. Truxton Hare, Jr., Football Star, Fined

LYNN, Mass., May 4.—(INS.)—Charged with speeding in an automobile, T. Truxton Hare, Jr., Yale football star, was fined $15 in District Court here today.

While Hare had no license for operating the automobile, his companion, Miss Gladys Winifred Thorndike, daughter of a wealthy retired Boston engineer, contended that since she was the only one in the automobile with a license, she should be arraigned and not Hare. The football star paid the fine.

ERIE LAWYER SENTENCED TO FOUR MONTHS

S. Y. Rossiter Assigned to Cambria County; Witness Gets Year, Then on Parole

Attorney Samuel Y. Rossiter, of Erie, convicted in Federal Court at Erie in a prisoner substitution case, today was sentenced to four months in the Cambria County jail and ordered to pay a fine of $2,500 and the costs of the prosecution.

Rossiter's co-defendants, Joseph Donovan and Lester Beals, both of Erie, were also sentenced, Donovan to six months in the Allegheny County Jail and Beals to three months in the Beaver County Jail.

Sentence was imposed by Judge Nelson McVicar in Federal Court in session here.

APPEALS TAKEN

Appeals were immediately taken to the United States Circuit Court by Attorney Joseph A. Richardson and the three defendants were released on $1,000 bail each.

Judge McVicar in sentencing Rossiter, said:

Attorney Rossiter, declaring his innocence of the charge, said:

"You understand this will be the ruination of me; a tragedy to myself and family.

"Ordinarily you must take the verdict of the jury, but in this case you are sentencing a man who is absolutely innocent. I had no guilty knowledge of or guilty participation in the charges on which the jury convicted me."

WITNESS SENTENCED

Joseph Warner, government witness against Rossiter, Donovan and Beals, was sentenced to one month in the Allegheny County Jail and ordered placed on probation for three years upon the expiration of his sentence.

Assistant United States District Attorney James I. Marsh, federal prosecutor, had asked leniency for Warner.

The case against the trio developed following the arrest of Stanley Wells, of Port Colborne, Ont., reputed wealthy rum runner, and Beals, while attempting to land a cargo of liquor from Lake Erie. They were released under heavy bonds, Wells giving his name as Joe Jarvis.

WELLS SUBSTITUTED

On December 31, 1929, Warner, substituting for Wells and under the name of Jarvis, went into federal court and entered a plea of guilty. A similar plea was made by Beals, and both men were sentenced by Federal Judge R. M. Gibson to serve 60 days in the Erie County jail.

A few days later the deception was discovered by a Coast Guard and a federal grand jury returned an indictment charging Rossiter, Donovan, Wells, Jarvis and Beals with conspiring to substitute a government prisoner. Wells has never been apprehended.

Two Preachers Indicted For Flogging Drinker

MENA, Ark., May 4.—(AP.)—Two ministers were under indictment here today for flogging a man they accused of disregarding their warning to keep sober while the Red Cross fed his family last winter.

Sheriff John E. Joplin said if they were convicted and fined he would raise the money to pay the fines, and added:

"I think it was a Christian act."

The ministers, the Rev. Sid Wise and the Rev. P. R. Larimore, of the Apostolic faith, have not been arrested. Wise, who is said by the sheriff to have whipped Bud Ralls last month, is in New Mexico holding a revival meeting. Before leaving here, however, he told officers if he were indicted he would return to face the charge. Larimore was permitted to remain at liberty on his own recognizance.

The ministers admitted the flogging, Sheriff Joplin said, and he added their act appeared to have the approval of residents of the community.

Ralls did not file charges against the men, but reports to the prosecuting attorney led him to take the case before the grand jury, Joplin said:

"I understand Ralls has stayed sober since."

King and Queen of Siam Welcomed by Walker

By DAVID P. SENTNER
International News Service.

NEW YORK, May 4.—The King and Queen of Siam got the "royal works" today from the City of New York.

Stepping out of their theoretical incognito, the rulers of the quaint Asiatic kingdom 12,000 miles away from skyscraper land came officially to City Hall to be formally greeted and hear Mayor (Jimmy) Walker say nice things about them.

The King and Queen were in mourning for the death of His Majesty's half-brother in Paris. The King wore formal attire. The Queen was dressed in a black satin coat with a Persian lamb collar, a black straw hat and a black silk frock. The King, replying to Walker, said:

"It is a great pleasure and a privilege to be received as guests of this metropolis of America. No other spot on the earth contains such an impressing manifestation of the material power of mankind."

Mayor Walker said:

"You are, after all, one of the few remaining kings who still work at the job. America's knowledge of Siam, previous to your visit, perhaps has been limited to the misleading idea that your country was the home of white elephants and Siamese twins."

FALL RESTS FINAL HOPE IN PARDON BY PRESIDENT HOOVER

COURT FIGHT ON SENTENCE DROPPED

Ex-Cabinet Officer Fears Ordeal of Another Trial Would Cause His Death

THREE RIVERS, N. M., May 4. — (AP.) — Albert B. Fall looked to President Hoover today for a pardon as his only avenue of escape from a sentence of a year in jail and $100,000 fine on conviction of accepting a bribe from E. L. Doheny, oil man.

The former secretary of the interior announced yesterday he would not again appeal his sentence by a District of Columbia Court in which he was found guilty of charges growing out of the leasing of naval oil reserves. He said:

LEAVES FATE TO FRIENDS

"I am wiring him not to proceed further in the matter of my appeal to the Supreme Court, but to leave any further proceedings in the hands of my friends, to be handled by them as they have been doing, directly with the President. I am stating to Mr. Hogan that in the event of remote contingency of a reversal of my case, I could not undergo the strain of another trial without very probably fatal results."

Petitions have been circulated by friends in New Mexico and elsewhere asking a presidential pardon for the Harding cabinet officer.

The District of Columbia Court of Appeals recently upheld Fall's sentence. The next step would have been application to the Supreme Court for a writ of error.

NO MONEY FOR FINE

Fall, interviewed at his ranch here after action of the Court of Appeals at Washington, said his attitude toward a presidential pardon was largely passive. He added:

"I am an old man. I am not guilty of the crime of which I was accused. I had fought until I am worn out, and considerations for my family impel me to carry the fight no further."

He said he had no money with which to pay the fine and explained he had lost ownership of the ranch on which he lives, when a mortgage was foreclosed several years ago.

ARCTIC RESCUE PLANE POISED

REYKJAVIK, Iceland, May 4. —(INS.)—The dramatic search for Augustino Courtauld, British meteorologist marooned all winter in a tiny shack on the interior ice cap of Greenland, neared its climax today as Capt. Albin Ahrenberg prepared to scour the Arctic wastes for the missing man.

The famous Swedish airman arrived safely at Angmagsalik, Greenland, yesterday. He was balked in his intention to fly direct to Courtauld's aid when a thick coating of ice formed on the wings of his plane during the last stages of his flight from Reykjavik.

Unless he has succumbed to the rigors of his long exposure to Arctic climes, it was generally felt today the rescue of Courtauld now is but a matter of hours.

POWER OUSTER SUIT FILED

WASHINGTON, May 4.—(INS.)—The Senate, represented by John W. Davis, New York lawyer and Democratic presidential nominee in 1924, today filed its quo warranto proceedings in the District of Columbia Supreme Court in an effort to oust from office George Otis Smith, chairman of the reorganized Federal Power Commission.

The court was asked to determine if Smith holds office legally, inasmuch as the Senate, after confirming his appointment, later rejected it after President Hoover refused its request to resubmit his appointment papers.

Smith aroused the Senate's ire by dismissing two veteran employes of the commission, Charles A. Russell, solicitor, and William V. King, chief accountant, as soon as he assumed office. Later the commission reinstated King.

GIRL STABBED IN 4TH DEATH MYSTERY

San Diego Women in Terror As Killing by Slasher Follows Three Stranglings

International News Service.

SAN DIEGO, Cal., May 4.—Another feminine murder—the fourth in a series of such crimes this year—today confronted authorities with the fatal stabbing of Hazel Bradshaw, 20, a telephone operator.

The girl's body, in which a knife had been plunged about a dozen times, was found in a Boy Scout Indian village in Balboa Park by two scouts.

Not a single clue was left by the killer in the latest woman murder to send a new chill of terror through the hearts of San Diego residents. The earlier victims were Virginia Brooks, school girl, kidnaped and murdered February 11; Mrs. W. B. Bibbens, who was garroted in her apartment April 23, and Louise Teuber, 17, who was strangled and hanged to a tree April 17.

SUITOR TALKS

The last person to have seen Miss Bradshaw was Edward Garrison, 35, a railroad commissary head and a suitor. He admitted he had taken the girl to two shows during the day, and later walked with her to her home through Balboa Park, passing the merry-go-round in front of the zoo entrance.

This merry-go-round is a block away from the place in which the girl's body was found.

Another former suitor of Miss Bradshaw also appeared voluntarily at the police station. He was Harry Glickson, chief petty officer on the cruiser U. S. S. Louisville. Police stated Glickson had given a substantial allbi for all his movements of Saturday night and Sunday morning.

PARROT FEVER FEARED HERE

mine if they, too, were due to parrot fever.

Dr. C. B. Maits, director of the City Health Department, said that Dr. Philip E. Marks, in charge of the bureau of infectious diseases, had started an investigation of all three deaths.

DISEASE DOUBTED

Mrs. Wiegand was buried today. Her husband, Richard, said that neither he nor her physicians believed that she had died of psittacosis.

The infection was supposed to have come from a brother, Harry Lindner, who recovered from his illness.

Dr. F. P. Tarnapowicz, who attended her, said she had no symptoms of the disease.

He examined the woman and found her suzering from pneumonia. His suspicions of parrot fever were aroused, he said, when he discovered that the family's bird was sick.

Members of the family told him, Dr. Tarnapowicz said, that the bird had eaten broken glass.

Nevertheless, he called another physician into consultation and both, after an examination, decided the patient had no traces of psittacosis.

The bird died a short time later, before Mrs. Weigand's death.

It was not sent to a laboratory for examination, Dr. Tarnapowicz said.

Mrs. Weigand's husband said that her brother, Harry Linden, was the first of the family to become ill.

TAKEN ILL LATER

Mrs. Weigand became ill a short time later, but, he said, neither he nor the doctor believed her illness was attributable to her brother's sickness.

The brother recovered and the husband and others who had been caring for him had not been affected.

Mrs. Weigand's father became ill shortly after she did, and died at 12:30 a. m., Thursday, in West Penn Hospital, half an hour after his daughter's death.

Dr. Tarnapowicz said he did not believe the father's illness had been contracted from Mrs. Weigand.

JURY PROBING OHIO JUDGES

YOUNGSTOWN, O., May 4.—(AP.)—A special grand jury was called today to investigate the offices of Prosecutor Ray L. Thomas and Former Street Railway Commissioner Harry E. Engle.

Thirty-five men and women were summoned and from them 15 members of the jury were to be selected by three outside judges.

The visiting judges were sent here by Chief Justice Carrington T. Marshall, of the State Supreme Court, to settle the dispute between Thomas and the five Mahoning County Common Pleas Court judges over control of the investigation of Engle and the relations of the public utilities with public officials.

The Mahoning judges have battled to take the investigation out of the hands of Thomas and have placed various charges against his conduct in office. These charges also are to be investigated by the special grand jury.

NO ELIGIBLES ON CIVIL LIST SAYS LANG

Director, Explaining His Appointments, Declares Bureau Provided No Names

Further derelictions of the Civil Service Commission were charged today when Director Edward G. Lang, of the Public Works Department, declared he had made a number of "provisional" appointments in the Bureau of Recreation only after he had first determined that there were no lists of eligibles on file in the commission's office.

The Civil Service Commission is supposed to hold examinations of applicants and keep a list of persons eligible for appointments when vacancies occur. When there are no eligibles, the administration is able to make a "provisional" appointment, the examination to take place later.

Lang made his statement in connection with revelation by the Civic Club of Allegheny County that their protests against so-called "political appointments" of recreational leaders apparently had been ignored by Mayor Charles H. Kline's office.

Lang said he did not recall how many appointments had been made and added there were no vacancies now.

"NOT NECESSARY"

Dr. F. H. Frederick, chairman of the Civil Service Commission, said it had not been deemed necessary to give applicants a regular examination because the positions were only temporary. The next examinations for permanent positions in the Bureau of Recreation, Dr. Frederick said, would be held in June.

Several weeks ago it was revealed that lists of eligibles in various classifications had not been filled, thereby enabling the administration to make appointments regardless of examinations.

Future action of the Civic Club will be determined at a luncheon meeting tomorrow of the recreation committee in Civic Club headquarters in the William Penn Hotel, officials said today.

The Civic Club made its protest more than a month ago in a letter to Mayor Kline. An investigation disclosed, it was announced, that many of the appointees are not qualified for their work and as a result the municipal recreational program is seriously hampered. Since 1926 more than 500 appointments have been made and no examinations held. Saturday provisional appointments of 20 leaders were made without examination by the Civil Service Commission.

SCAN PARKE BOOKS

R. M. Griffith, of the firm of Price, Waterhouse & Co., conducting an audit of the Department of Supplies for City Controller J. P. Kerr's office, was in Philadelphia today to examine the books of the L. H. Parks Company.

They desire to compare the Parke Company records of its transactions with the City of Pittsburgh with records in the supplies department. It was on the award of a considerable amount of business to the Parke Company, despite the fact that it was not the low bidder that the present investigation was instigated. The Parke Company recently refused a similar examination of its records to auditors of Main & Co., conducting an audit of the supplies department for the Citizens Committee.

Henry Oliver Evans has retracted his statement that 211 jobs had been left out of consideration by the Department of Public Works in their reply to his allegations regarding increased contract costs from June, 1928, to date.

A recheck of the figures by Evans shows that the percentages published by the department are substantially correct, he said. Evans expressed regret for the error in a letter to Charles M. Reppert, chief city engineer.

Lady Astor, Wed 25 Years, Tells of Happiness

TAPLOW, Buckinghamshire, England, May 4.—(AP.)—Lord Astor and Lady Astor, American-born and the first woman to be elected for Parliament, today looked back on a very happy and very full 25 years of married life.

They observed their silver wedding anniversary yesterday at their country home, Cliveden, alone and without ostentation. She is the former Nancy Witcher Langhorne, of Greenwood, Va., and this is her second marriage. Answering questions, she said:

"It has been a very happy and a very full 25 years. We have brought up five children and done a great deal of work. The secret of married happiness is work and shared interests.

"The guiding principles of our lives have been social service and the teachings of Christ. Striving together to follow those principles has made our marriage a happy one."

Asked as to whether Lord Astor's interests were the same as hers when she married him, she replied:

"They weren't when I married him, but they became so soon afterward."

Coolidge Urges Higher Qualifications for Bar

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., May 4.

To the Editor of The Sun-Telegraph:

Those who are engaged in the practice of the law have before them two problems so serious as almost to menace the future existence of the profession. One is the carrying on of law business by unauthorized persons and corporations. Associations undertake to protect the legal rights of members and all kinds of persons prepare legal papers. Where this is not prohibited by statute apparently it can be enjoined by the courts.

Mr. Coolidge

Another difficulty is the overcrowding of the bar with members not sufficiently educated to meet present complicated requirements of practice. Estimates are that 4,500 new lawyers are needed each year while about 10,000 are admitted. The result is a lowering of the standards and ethics of the profession.

While no one wishes to exclude any worthy person from the legal profession the public welfare requires higher educational preparation than is now demanded in most states. Many states have no general education requirement and only 11 call for the equivalent of two years in college. Those who are unselfishly seeking to protect the public by keeping the standards of the bar high are right in proposing to raise the other 37 states to the same requirement.

DIVORCE EVERY 10 MINUTES NEW RECORD IN RENO

Broadway Searched for Missing York Heiress

WRITES BOOK ON THRILLS, VANISHES

Father Leaves Note Urging Return After Vain Hunt in Dance Halls, Cafes, Studios

By CROSWELL BOWEN, JR.
International News Service.

NEW YORK, May 4.—Broadway's chief points of interest were searched today in the quest for Doris Louise Dempsey, missing 15-year-old York (Pa.) heiress, when it was learned that she herself had written a novel of romance and adventure based on life in New York.

Doris, a freshman at the York Collegiate Institute and a daughter of William W. Dempsey, wealthy lumberman, disappeared from home on the night of April 22 and, with very little money, came to New York.

CRAVED ADVENTURE

Mrs. Elizabeth Corbin, of the Missing Persons Bureau, said today that the girl's father had told her of Doris' novel. He also revealed that she was a first-class swimmer. On that tip, the principal swimming pools of the city were being watched.

The authorities, however, leaned to the theory that Doris, who is of a vivacious disposition, craved adventure—that she came to Broadway in the hopes of glimpsing some of the glamorous personalities she had read about, and perhaps see the prototypes of those she had written about in her book.

Broadway's cabarets, dance halls and studios were searched intensively on the theory that she might have sought, or found, employment in one of them. Doris was inclined to be romantic and might have had ambitions to go on the stage, another factor that was not being overlooked by the authorities.

FATHER LEAVES NOTES

The girl's father, who has been in New York trying to find her, returned to York yesterday afternoon. Before he departed he left with Mrs. Corbin the following message for Doris:

"Doris, please come back. Your mother and I are terribly worried and are waiting for you. Please let us know your whereabouts and relieve our anxiety."

Doris' mother is said to be in a state of collapse.

COURT FREES 84 UNDER NEW LAW

Gala 'Graduation' Party To Be Staged by Scores Snapping Marriage Bonds

International News Service.

RENO, Nev., May 4.—Nevada's high-gear divorce mill today began grinding out decrees at the record rate of one every 10 minutes.

Having smashed all records for the number of divorce suits filed in one day when 189 went on record Saturday, Washoe County's two Superior Court judges started granting "freedom papers" today to 84 of the applicants.

"GRADUATION" PARTY

Meanwhile, Reno's greatest "graduation" party will reach a gay climax tonight as the more than four score "graduates" celebrate "liberty bells."

It is an old Reno custom for divorcees to stage a farewell party the night their decrees are granted. Capacity of the Willows, the "divorce capital's" favorite night club, and the Riverside, palatial hotel residence of many of the most prominent members of the colony, is expected to be taxed tonight.

The florists, too, will have a gala day. An elaborate corsage worn the night marriage shackles are thrown off is the divorcee's badge of freedom.

Not all of those who receive freedom today are going to stay for parties, however. The Transcontinental Railroad reported exceptionally heavy reservations both east and west, indicating that many plan to quit Reno with all possible speed as soon as they secure their decrees.

MANY MEN APPLICANTS

One of the outstanding features of the record-smashing number of suits filed Saturday was the large number of men listed as plaintiffs. Approximately 25 per cent of the applicants for divorce were men. Previously the ratio was approximately 1 out of 10.

Reno attorneys said the new six weeks' residence law effective May 1 and responsible for the grand rush this week, would result in more men securing Nevada divorces. Men of affairs previously could not afford three months away from business, but now are able to combine a vacation with divorce aspirations, hunting and fishing during their residence period.

OIL EQUIPMENT SALE SOUGHT

Permission to sell the refining equipment and pipe lines of the Butler County Oil Refining Company to H. H. Phillips, of Butler, for $218,000, was sought in a petition filed in Federal Court here today by R. H. McClester and Joseph A. Beck, receivers of the company.

Judge Nelson McVicar scheduled a hearing on the petition for Saturday. The receivers said that since they took over the operation of the company in January they have operated it at a loss of about $5,000. The company's liabilities are listed at approximately $600,000.

Weather Conditions.

A well defined high pressure area occupies the eastern half of the country. It is attended by clear skies, generally, and unseasonable temperatures in some localities. Over Ohio, Western Pennsylvania, and West Virginia, there was a heavy deposit of frost, and temperatures of freezing and below prevailed. The temperature is rising over the Ohio Valley States and the Plains States, but falling again in the Canadian Northwest, where they are considerably below freezing. Pressure is relatively low over the Plain States, and the Gulf States, and, as a result, cloudy weather is general and light showers are in progress in scattered places. Showers were quite general over these sections yesterday and last night.

River Conditions.

The rivers are falling. Stage at Franklin is 4.2 feet; Lock No. 7, 11.7; Pittsburgh, 12.6; Dam No. 4, 9.9; Dam No. 6, 9.5; Dam No. 10, 9.8; and Dam No. 14, 7.4. The dams are up.

JAPAN AIRMAN OFF TO U. S.

TOKIO, May 4.—(INS.)—More than 9,000 miles of land and sea stretched today in the path of Seiji Yoshiwara, 27-year-old Japanese airman attempting a flight from Tokio to Washington.

In the first effort in history to connect the capitals of Japan and the United States by air, Yoshiwara got away from the Haneda airdrome and headed for Numasaki, his first stopping-place, 368 miles north of Tokio. He landed there five hours and 15 minutes later.

Yoshiwara, who earned himself the title of the "Lindbergh of Japan" by his flight from Berlin to Tokio last year, is attempting the long aerial journey from the Orient to the new world in a German amphibian plane. His proposed route will take him over the Kurile Islands to Petropavlovsk, Siberia; over the Bering Sea to the Aleutian Islands and thence to Seward, Alaska.

From Seward he will fly southward to Seattle and then to San Francisco, ending his epic journey at Washington. The total distance is something over 9,300 miles.

The destroyer's crew and some material were removed to the transport. The damaged vessel was taken in town for the base at Porto Santo in the Madeira Islands.

Boston Opens Drive On Racy Literature

BOSTON, May 4.—(INS.)—A drive on immoral books circulated by lending libraries was under way here today. It was launched following discovery of an alleged sex novel from a lending library being read by a 16-year-old student during a study hour in Roxbury Memorial High School.

DO-X SAFE, HOP OVER SEA NEXT

BERLIN, May 4.—(AP.)—Unreported for many hours, Capt. Friedrich Christiansen, commander of the seaplane DO-X, sent word today that he had landed at Bolama, Portuguese West Africa, late yesterday.

The trip was one of the longest yet essayed by the Dornier plane. She had flown to Bolama from Villa Cisneros, in Spanish Rio de Oro, a distance of about 950 miles.

World Fliers Ready For New York Hop

SAN JUAN, Porto Rico, May 4.—(INS.)—Clyde Pangborn and Hugh Herndon, Jr., who are preparing for a round-the-world flight, groomed their plane today for their return trip to New York.

The airmen arrived here yesterday from Santo Domingo on a prolonged test flight before attempting the 'round-the-world journey. They plan to start back for New York tomorrow, hoping to make the trip to Miami in a single jump.

Police Clubs Halt 'Hunger Marchers'

INDIANAPOLIS, May 4.—(INS.)—Police clubbed "hunger marchers" and other radicals who refused to disperse at a sidewalk rally in front of the Negro K. of P. Hall here today.

Sergt. Walter White led two teams of motor policemen in the dispersal of the Reds.

DEPUTY MAYOR BILL RUMORED

With the announced intention of working for several bills pertaining to Pittsburgh now pending in the State Legislature, City Solicitor Charles A. Waldschmidt left today for Harrisburg.

However, politicians here were wondering if there was another and more important bill under consideration. The matter of having a deputy mayor for Pittsburgh has been rumored, and politicians thought Waldschmidt's visit at this time might concern such a bill now in the hands of Representative Max J. Spann. Much of the city's business has to be carried to Mayor Charles H. Kline while he is confined in the St. Francis Hospital, and the creation of a deputy mayor would relieve the present ailing executive of much routine matter. It would also permit the Mayor to take an extended vacation to recuperate.

Megan Hints Welsh Discovered America

LONDON, May 4.—(AP.)—Speaking of America being discovered, what about the Welsh? Such in effect, asks Megan Lloyd George. In a radio speech she referred to a legend that Prince Madoc, of Wales, sailed westward 300 years before Columbus and found some land. She added:

"It is certainly true that many hundreds of thousands of Welshmen have discovered America since."

CASHIER KILLS WIFE, SELF

CONSHOHOCKEN, Pa., May 4.—(AP.)—Faced with arrest for the embezzlement of $45,700 from the First National Bank of Conshohocken, of which he was cashier, Howard C. Pedrick, 35, strangled his wife as she slept, police believe, and then shot himself to death in their home here.

The pair were found today by Pedrick's father, J. Newton Pedrick, retired business man, and another relative, who had been summoned by a maid.

Mrs. Pedrick, who was 35, and was president of the Women's Club of Conshohocken, and a leader in civic affairs, was in bed, with a stocking knotted around her throat and a gag in her mouth. Pedrick, police said, was found in the garage, a bullet hole in the right temple.

The engine of his own car and that of his wife was running and the garage was filled with carbon monoxide gas.

Pedrick admitted the embezzlement on Saturday, according to B. B. Davenport, a national bank examiner.

BAKER'S RITES TOMORROW

NEW YORK, May 4.—(INS.)—At simple funeral services, George F. Baker, rated only below Henry Ford and John D. Rockefeller, Sr., among the world's richest men, will be buried tomorrow.

Services for the New York banker, who died of pneumonia Saturday evening at the age of 91, will be held at the Baker summer home in Tuxedo Park with leaders of finance and public officials in attendance. Interment will be in Kensico Cemetery, the Baker vault where his wife is buried.

Messages of condolence from parts of the world, including those from President Hoover, John D. Rockefeller and J. Pierpont Morgan, were received by the family. None was made public.

It was reported the will would dispose of a fortune of about $500,000,000. George F. Baker, Jr., Mrs. William G. Loew and Mrs. Howard B. St. George were expected to inherit the income of the bulk of their father's fortune, but the will will give millions to charity, it was anticipated.

Announcement was made that the First National Bank of New York, which Baker guided to greatness, will not be closed on the day of the funeral.

The bomb, tossed from a passing automobile, rocked the house and shattered several windows in the vicinity. Guerrara, his wife and two children were thrown from their beds by the blast. No one was injured.

EPISCOPALIANS VOTE BUDGET

NEW YORK, May 4.—(AP.)—A budget of $4,225,000 for the world-wide work of the Episcopal church in 1932 was adopted yesterday by the National Council of the church.

An annual increase of 2½ per cent in the budget total for succeeding years also was decided upon. Lewis B. Franklin, vice president and treasurer of the council, in announcing this step said:

"The Episcopal church is tired of standing still. We are not going ahead, and we feel that an annual increase of 2½ per cent is warranted by the hopeful economic outlook."

Mary's Prince Grand Mate, Says Pola

CHICAGO, May 4.—(INS.)—Take it from the ex-wife herself, Prince Serge Mdivani makes a wonderful husband.

Said Pola Negri when she passed through Chicago en route to Hollywood:

"Yes, he's charming. But he's a finished page in my life. I am an artist, and he was a handicap to my career."

Miss Negri, who intends to resume her place as a star of the movie world, declared she had nothing but best wishes for the Prince and his new wife, Mary McCormic, opera singer.

SON MISSING, MOTHER ILL

Mrs. Louis Rosenson, 329 Helen street, McKees Rocks, was declared by doctors today to be critically ill. Her affliction is of nervous origin, due to the disappearance just a week ago of her son, Albert Rosenson, 14, they said.

Master Rosenson

An appeal has been issued to police in the entire Pittsburgh district to watch for the son, whose unexplained disappearance so upset Mrs. Rosenson. He is described as 4 feet 6 inches tall, weighing 92 pounds. When he disappeared, his father says, Albert wore a blue coat, long gray trousers, a brown felt skull cap, brown vest and a white shirt.

If his mother is to recover, Rosenson says, Albert must return.

Quake Sinks Shot, Golf Experts At Sea

MANCHESTER, Eng., May 4.—(INS.)—British golfing experts were called upon today to decide whether an earthquake is a legitimate stroke-saver.

Playing over the Chorlton Links, an English golfer failed by half an inch to hole his putt on the fourth green yesterday when an obliging earth tremor came along and sank the ball for him. He claimed the hole, but his opponent protested and both agreed to appeal to the St. Andrews authorities for a ruling.

The quake shook down a few chimneys and damaged crockery in Manchester and Broughton, but no injuries were reported.

DOPE ENEMIES LOSE CHINESE LEADER

Dr. Kai-Seng, Transferred, Will Not Attend Geneva Parley; Reason Mystifies

By WINIFRED BLACK

GENEVA, May 4.—Woo Kai-Seng, gentleman of China, will not be at the Geneva dope conference this year, they say. I wonder why.

Woo Kai-Seng was one of the great figures at the last conference. He was the Chinese minis' to Switzerland and a delegate to the League of Nations' Opium Committee.

Every time there was a lull in the proceedings of the last dope conference Dr. Kai-Seng got on his feet and made a burning speech denouncing the dumping of narcotics into China.

"SLAVERY OF DOPE"

Dr. Kai-Seng is a strange man. He is rich and highly educated with a taste for fine porcelains and a delicate appreciation of the fine art of living in all its details; yet he concerns himself earnestly and almost bitterly with what he calls the cruel slavery of dope, which, he says quite firmly and quite frequently, has been forced upon his people by the British government.

When the last conference was excitedly discussing the limitation of dope Dr. Kai-Seng persisted in saying that what the dope situation needs, in his country at any rate, was not limitation, but control.

And Dr. Kai-Seng had the assurance to expect that Christian nations would stoop to consider for one moment the welfare of a few million heathens.

The conference appeared to look upon the good doctor from the flowery kingdom as a kind of gadfly to be endured with some show of patience.

Woo Kai-Seng has been transferred to another department of state where it will not be convenient for him to go to the narcotic conference at Geneva. China is a long way off.

CURIOUS OF MOTIVE

One must cross many miles of blue water before reaching the outer door of the flowery kingdom. It ill beseems an ignorant foreigner to presume to pry into the affairs of state in that marvelous and fast-awakening country, but I can't help wondering if some earnest representative of pounds, shillings, and pence found it to his taste to whisper into some august ear that it might be just as well to keep the disturbing Dr. Kai-Seng as far from the opium conference this year as possible.

"BABES IN WOODS"

China and Italy are called among the delegates to the conference "The Two Babes in the Woods."

Rather an odd classification, isn't it?

Particularly when you think that neither Italy nor China are precisely what you might call unsophisticated.

But both Italy and China have persisted in sending representatives to the dope conferences who actually care something about the pitiful victims of dope.

Signor Stefano Cavazzoni, of Italy, has raised the voice of his tremendous eloquence again and again in behalf of the victim nations.

Italy will have nothing to do with dope in any way, shape or form.

And any human being caught buying or selling any kind of narcotic drugs in Italy must make up his mind to face a penalty that is anything in the world but a joke.

HUGE ILLICIT TRAFFIC

Signor Cavazzoni has not been transferred to far Cathay or to Uruguay or anywhere else; he is coming to the May conference and everyone who knows anything about him and his courage and persistence and intelligence hopes that he will adopt the idea of government manufacture of narcotics.

Seventy tons a year—that's the estimate, and the conservative estimate, of the illicit traffic in dope.

Seventy tons—enough to make a dope slave of every man, woman and child in the United States of America.

How long is this terrible traffic going to keep on and just what will the Geneva conference decide to do about it?

CHICAGO, May 4.—New York was "on the spot" last night.

While Mayor Anton J. Cermack sat in the audience of a downtown theater to see if anything was shown to reflect unfavorably on Chicago, Edgar Wallace's gangland play, "On the Spot," was presented for the first time here, with the actors calling Chicago "New York," and Cicero, a Chicago suburb, "Brooklyn."

"On the Spot" had its premiere in Pittsburgh last week, where references to Chicago were deleted by the author.

Woman's Airplane Crashes in Persia

LONDON, May 4.—(AP.)—In a cable to the London Daily Express, Mrs. Edward Montagu, who took off from here March 27 on a 6,000-mile flight through Russia and Persia, said her plane crashed and burned Saturday at Meshed, Persia.

She and her pilot, Rupert Belville, young amateur flier were pulled from the burning wreck without a burn or a scratch, she said.

WOMAN'S DEATH ON RIDE TOLD

HARRISBURG, May 4.—(AP.)—State police have reported a man who was with Mrs. Eleanor May Wright, 46, of New Buffalo, whose body was found Thursday on the bank of an abandoned canal, near here, told them Mrs. Wright died while riding with him and his housekeeper.

When James Ritter, of Marysville, the man who police said was with Mrs. Wright, discovered she was dead, he threw her out of the car because he was afraid to take the body home to her husband, according to the police.

Mrs. Wright went to Ritter's home Wednesday afternoon and drank some liquor with him and his housekeeper, Lola Mell, state troopers say Ritter told them. Afterward the three came here. While in this city, Ritter noticed Mrs. Wright was getting cold, he was quoted by officers as having said. He thought a ride would help her, and they started up the Susquehanna trail, according to the story police said he told them.

Ritter and the Mell woman were held by the state police for further questioning.

$150,000 FREES KIDNAPED MAN

CHICAGO, May 4.—(INS.)—With the reported payment of $150,000 to a kidnaping gang for the release of James Hackett, gambler, state attorney's investigators today began an investigation of his abduction and also of the kidnaping of at least 17 other wealthy gamblers in the last six months.

Officials named Edward (Spike) O'Donnell, South Side beer gangster, as the leader of the gang that has been preying on wealthy gamblers. A search for O'Donnell was begun.

Hackett, the Blue Island gambling "king," who freely admitted the kidnaping and record-breaking ransom, was seized by the extortionists at the Navajo Country Club grounds last Friday.

His release came Saturday after his wife and James Blouin, an associate, delivered to the kidnapers the $150,000 in bills of $1,000 and $500.

So fearful was Hackett's wife and Blouin, who is the former world champion bowler, that the kidnapers might do harm to Hackett that neither sought to evade the ransom or call upon authorities.

LONDON, May 4.—(Universal.)—The British cruiser Vindictive today left Hong Kong under orders to steam at full speed to Nanking, where it is feared continued rebel seccesses in the south and the breakdown of the Chinese-British extra-territoriality negotiations may result in outbreaks against foreigners.

WOMAN GIVEN $1,000 FOR ART ESSAY

Check Presented New York Winner at Ceremonies in Kaufmann's; Laud Work

By PENELOPE REDD

Many phases of art and education were represented by the group of citizens who attended the ceremonies of awarding the $1,000 prize to Catherine K. Bauer, of New York City, in the office of Edgar J. Kaufmann today.

Miss Bauer's essay on housing in Frankfort on the Main, Germany, was the one selected as the best exposition of the relation of art in industry offered by Kaufmann's as a part of their active promotion of the idea.

The program, which was broadcast on KDKA, presented aspects of art as viewed by Mr. Kaufmann from the standpoint of the merchant; by Samuel Harden Church, as president of the Carnegie Institute; by Mrs. John M. Phillips, as a leader in women's clubs, and by Henry Hornbostel, as an architect.

DANGERS IN PRIZES

Miss Bauer, in a witty acknowledgment of her appreciation of the prize, said:

"The truth of it is that a little prize-winning is a dangerous thing—above all for struggling young writers. Very, very dangerous, indeed. It probably shouldn't be allowed. I must make one serious statement in appreciation. Namely, the heartening pleasure it is, in these halcyon days of dubious 'tie-ups,' to find a department store that freely and generously awards a prize to an article as little to their immediate interest as was my dull treatise on housing in Germany."

Miss Bauer's essay, which was a report on a contemporary experiment, was commented upon by Frederick K. Bigger, president of the Pittsburgh Chapter of the American Institute of Architects.

ORDER MEANS BEAUTY

Mr. Bigger said:

"Miss Bauer's essay, surprisingly enough in a prize winning competition, dodges the more obvious treatment of the subject and digs into the deeper and more fundamental aspects of it. She senses clearly that, in our cities as elsewhere, the creation of order is often the first step towards beauty. Her report of Dr. May's creation in Frankfort stresses the possibilities of using repetitive units without loss of the general composition which any creative architect develops in the course of his study.

"In the example of the Frankfort housing project, unit slabs of concrete are multiplied many times, as a peculiarly modern type of construction, just as in earlier types of construction standardized bricks were used to create the charming brick work of Lombardy."

Today's ceremonies were held to mark the first anniversary of the unveiling of the Boardman Robinson murals in the store.

Mrs. Phillips has been for the past year concentrating the scattered efforts of the club women of Southwestern Pennsylvania in creating decorative arts into an orderly program. Her results will be shown in an exhibition which will open at Kaufmann's May 22.

Amherst Shaken By Slight Quake

AMHERST, Mass., May 4—(AP.)—A distinct earthquake shock was felt here early today. It was strong enough to shake houses and cause dishes to rattle.

SCHOOL MUSIC WINNERS NAMED

Six students from the Pittsburgh district were victors in the finals of the Pennsylvania Forensic League contests which closed in Altoona late Saturday. More than 2,100 high school students were entered in the annual event, which was preceded by eliminations in all sections of the state. The six winners were:

Trombone, Robert Burch, Munhall, third; French horn, Cren Swisher, Homestead, third; flute, Donald Mathias, Charleroi, second; oboe, John Vogt, Homestead, third; bassoon, Ralph Bossom, Charleroi, first, and William Lange, Charleroi, third.

SANDINO TERMS OUTLINED

MEXICO CITY, May 4.—(AP.)—Pedro Jose Zepeda, representative of Augustino Sandino, the Nicaraguan insurgent, today outlined the conditions under which Sandino would lay down his arms.

They are: Immediate withdrawal of American forces; a pledge by the Nicaraguan government to obtain revision of the canal treaty with the United States, and provision for return to Nicaraguan control of the railways, banks and customs houses.

HOOVER SOUNDS WARNING ON ARMS

Increase Since World War Burden to Prosperity, He Tells Commerce Meeting

cuperation of the world, but of more consequence, the constant threats and fears which arise from it are a serious contribution to all forms of instability, whether social, political or economic."

Mr. Hoover viewed the situation frankly and said that try as we must to support every proposal of economic co-operation which is just "to our respective peoples," "yet we must recognize that reduction of this gigantic waste of competition in military establishments is the ultimate of an importance transcendent over all other forms of such economic effort." He observed:

"Within a short time the principal nations of the world will meet to discuss the broad questions of reduction in land armament.

"Of all proposals for the economic rehabilitation of the world, I know of none which compares in necessity or importance with the successful result of that conference. It is within the power of business men of the world to insist that this problem shall be met with sincerity, courage, and constructive action. It is within the power of statesmen to give to the world a great assurance for the future and a great moral victory for humanity."

BELGIAN'S THEORY

In another address before the congress, the world-wide depression was blamed by George Theunis, former premier of Belgium, on international tariff barriers, Russian dumping, industrial overproduction, decline in silver prices and overproduction in farm products.

He declared worldwide unemployment was retarding business recovery, but said the worst part of the depression had passed and that a "wave of contagious optimism" would restore prosperity.

He startled his audience by gently criticising high wage levels, declaring they brought a high cost of living and thrust workers into a vicious circle. He deplored the psychological condition among business men, opposed government intervention in behalf of business and condemned price-fixing schemes.

HARRIS BILL BANS GRADE CROSSINGS

Measure Would Place Ban On Construction of New 'Death Traps' in State

HARRISBURG, May 4.—Senator Frank J. Harris tonight will present in the state Senate a bill which would forbid the building of a road across a railroad track at grade and prohibit the building of a railroad across any established highway.

A companion bill to be introduced at the same time provides for the appointment of a commission to study the safety problem of Pennsylvania's 1,200 grade crossings, only 18 per cent of which are protected.

NEW CROSSING BAN

In emphasizing that his first bill would prevent the creation of any new grade crossings, Senator Harris points out that the grade crossing accidents each year kill 200 persons and injure 500 others in Pennsylvania.

Commenting on his bills, Senator Harris, who has been chairman of a committee which has been stuyding the problem said:

"We hoped that we would have a program of legislation completed for this session but we find that we will require more time and more authority from official sources. That is the reason for the offering of the bill to provide for a study and investigation.

200 KILLED IN YEAR

"The facts that the state of Pennsylvania has more than 1,200 grade crossings with only 18 per cent of them protected; that almost 200 people are killed and more than 500 badly injured each year; and that more than 2,500 have been killed in the last 12 years and several thousand badly injured seem evidence enough that some action is necessary.

"Our preliminary investigation shows that this is a very live subject in other states.

"A few years ago in New York, a $100,000,000 bond issue was passed for this purpose and another $100,000,000 was contributed by the railroad company.

"In New Jersey, an $84,000,000 bond issue was passed with a like amount given by the railroads.

"Many other states now have a program looking towards the protection and elimination of grade crossings.

SAFETY IN ENGLAND

"Our reports show that in all of England there is not one unprotected grade crossing and that in Germany a vehicle cannot come within 100 yards of a grade crossing while a train is passing.

"Public Service Commissions in this state have done some work along this line, but the laws are entirely inadequate to carry out any program with relief in a big way."

Each Pooch Wins Prize in This Dog Show

Dogs of all descriptions and pedigrees took part in a neighborhood dog show staged yesterday at the home of Thomas Lowry, 7149 Meade street. Nine dogs were entered by boys and girls and each drew a ribbon.

It was a five and 10-cent show, the receipts furnishing money for prizes and cash awards made to the contestants.

MUSMANNO'S BILLS BACKED

The Civic Club of Allegheny County today formally indorsed the Musmanno coal and iron police bill.

Its members, through their president, Maurice R. Scharff, announced that letters have been sent to all Allegheny County members of the Legislature asking them to vote for the Musmanno measure and against the Wilson bill, sponsored and supported by Gov. Pinchot.

"If the ether is constituted as I suggest, it must be the seat of enormous energy, not necessarily infinite, but far beyond any amount of which we have any conception.

"My speculation is that this boundless ether, thus full of energy, is utilized and is impregnated with something that may be called life and mind in excelsis, that is the home of the ideal and the supernal, and that all the life and mind we are conscious of is but an infinitesimal or residual fraction of this majestic or concomitant of supreme mind."

PINCHOT RATE BILLS AWAIT FOES' ACTION

Hint Opponents May Pass Measures to Block Tour Proposed by Governor

HARRISBURG, May 4.—The administration's three fair rate board bills will be debated in the Senate Judiciary General Committee late today, and may be sent to the floor.

This committee, in the control of the anti-Pinchot forces, is expected to attempt to rip the measures to pieces by amendment or hold them for further consideration.

It is on this basis that the Governor will begin, next Thursday, his trip to carry to the people his fight for their passage through the Senate. Efforts to block the measures last week in the House were unsuccessful.

It was rumored today that the Senate controlling forces, which have fought the Governor's utility program, might permit the bills to pass—and so ruin his tour into some of their senatorial districts.

Such a plan would submerge the political significance of the tour. But this would be at the expense of the utilities, to be subjected to stricter regulation, and the Public Service Commission which would be replaced by a fair rate board.

The Governor, planning to announce his campaign route tomorrow or Wednesday, is expected to reach Western Pennsylvania counties next week-end, beginning Thursday, May 14. A noon meeting in Washington on that date, and a night address in Pittsburgh, over the radio, are said to be on his schedule, subject however, to change.

TELL IT TO SALLY

By SALLY MARTIN

Wife Suffers Because of Husband's Jealousy

Babe had a Sweetie who "loved her so much he couldn't trust her"—to hear him tell it—

A Sweetie who demanded that she give up all her friends for him—even girl friends . . . and who went into sulks every time she spoke to another man.

And she was beginning to wonder whether she should marry him or not, so she wrote and asked our opinion.

Insane Jealousy

And here—as answer—is the story of a girl who did tie up with a man like that. . . .

"Dear Sally Martin:

"I wonder if you can't help me. I am 20 years old, and Roy, my husband, is 24. We have been married for one year . . . and that has been the most miserably unhappy year of my life. The reason is, Roy's insane jealousy. Really, it is terrible . . . no one can know how terrible . . . to have to live with a man like that.

"I have been faithful. I have loved him, truly and sincerely. But he is driving my love away and breaking my heart. He doesn't trust me a step out of his sight, although he was my first and only sweetheart, and I've never given anyone else a thought.

"When we go anywhere, which is seldom, I can't even smile, because he immediately accuses me of smiling at some man. I can't even buy a pair of shoes unless he's along 'to see that I don't get too friendly with the clerk that waits on me,' although I've never flirted with any clerk, anywhere. If we go to a show, and I look around, he pinches my arm, and is angry for the rest of the evening.

He Is Different

"But he's no angel himself. Whenever he looks at a pretty girl, why, that's all right! And I can't visit my own mother without him along, and when we're on the street I must keep my eyes on the sidewalk. We've argued and talked about his being different, but it's no use. It's just the same next time.

"All this is getting me so miserable I just can't stand it. Why can't he see that, instead of keeping my love, he is driving me from him by being that way?

"We never go to parties any more, because he's sure to start a quarrel if I speak to anyone. We're getting so we have no friends left. And we're so young! It's dreadful! What can I do?

"MARILYN."

Yes, I know it is dreadful, my dear, and senseless, and you have all my sympathy. But, you see, jealousy like that is really a sort of mental disease. I know how he is making you suffer . . . but, before you can do anything about it, you must try to understand that he is suffering, too. He is suffering because he is secretly filled with fear. Though he appears to be a bully, he inwardly distrusts his own power—and he's afraid that, if you see others, you'll like them better.

So, instead of using his common sense, he tries to keep you out of circulation . . . instead of trying to keep your love by earning it, he's trying to keep it by shutting you up so you can't compare him with anyone else. Which, of course, is completely idiotic, and bound to kill the very love he's so envious to hold.

Must Talk to Him

What'll you do about it? Well, honey, you'll have to wait for just the right moment, when he's in a good humor again, after one of those jealous fits, and then talk to him in a frank, friendly, sensible way. Try first to show him that you do love him—when he's in his right mind, and that you'll keep on loving him, if he'll stop making you unhappy. Be sympathetic and tender . . . but make him understand that unless he learns to treat you with the respect and trust which you deserve you can't keep on loving him.

Let him see that the happiness of your marriage is up to him . . . and how much of a good sport and a real man he is able to be. And if he won't change . . . walk out on him until he does.

Household Hints

For the invalid dish of poached egg on toast the toast should be cut into cubes.

Try polishing your jewelry with a broken gas mantle crushed to a powder. It will give a splendid luster.

When the raincoat becomes spotted or splashed with mud a row potato cut in half and rubbed well on the spots will remove them quite readily.

Never Be Prejudiced; Judge Everyone for His or Her True Worth—Fay King

By FAY KING

It is never wise to rate an entire family by the fame or infamy of one member.

There can be as great a difference between sisters and brothers, fathers and sons, foolish mothers, and sensible daughters, as between strangers on the same block.

To condemn a wife and children for the escapades of a father, or sisters and brothers, because one of them has dragged the others into the spotlight of scandal, is the most unfair attitude one can assume.

Some of the finest characters have been formed right in homes where regrettable examples of drunkenness, shiftlessness, and gambling have taught great lessons.

It is wise to judge every individual for his or her true worth. Never be prejudiced—or biased!

Love's Reawakening

Continuation of Love's Awakening

By ADELE GARRISON

Madge and Dicky Inspect New Playroom

I would have echoed dolefully Dicky's prophecy concerning his nephew "Hank" Harrison, if I had not had the hope that the gymnasium and workshop we were preparing for the Christmas surprise would provide an outlet for the boy's superfluous energy, but when I voiced that thought, Dicky looked at me quizzically.

"You'd have hopes for the gentleman with the pitchfork and the horns," he said fondly. "But maybe you're right. However, don't let your kind heart blind you to the fact that there's a bad strain in Hank, worse than there is in any of the others. But I don't think you need to worry over Junior's being trained in systematic deceit—yes, I had that notion too when I saw the warning look Hank gave him when he said he was "playing." I didn't like the way our lad stopped short. But I think I've spiked Hank's guns—I'll keep an eye on him and the rest of 'em are all right. I think it's doing Junior good to have the companionship of other youngsters. He's been too much alone."

Was there a reproach, even if unconscious, in his voice? It was an unjust one, I told myself, but I had no time for an answer even if I had wished to make one, for there was a knock on the door, and Dicky opened it to William and Henry, carrying the guns for which Dicky had asked. He counted them and dismissed the boys; then, first making sure the guns were unloaded, put them away. He unlocked the wall safe and put his service revolver away last, and when he had locked the safe again, came over to me and pulled me to my feet.

"There, you meddlesome Matty," he said roughly but tenderly, "you have won your point. The gun's unloaded."

Warily, I said nothing except a demure, "Thank you, Dicky," but I returned his kiss warmly, just as Katie's voice sounded in the hall outside.

"Meesis Graham, oh, Meesis Graham, vere you vas?"

"There are more people in this house with nothing to do except make a noise," Dicky grumbled unjustly, but I shook my head at him and, going to the door, called to my little maid.

"I'm in here Katie." I said just as my mother-in-law opened her door, gave a snort and a disgusted glare at the offender and slammed the door again. I was thankful for so mild a reproof, however, and smiled encouragingly at my little maid, who, with a wary look at my mother-in-law's closed door, came close to me.

"Meester Ticer, he say he like to have you und Meester Graham coom down und look at basement eef boys no snoop," she said and Dicky behind me gave the amused laugh which he always accords to Katie's speeches.

"Tell him we'll be right down," he said and Katie scurried away. Dicky and I followed her, after he had locked the door of his room and put the key in his pocket.

"Put not your trust in Hank," he said in a low voice as we started and said no more until we had gone into the basement where Mr. Ticer and Jerry broadly grinning awaited us.

"Like it," I echoed. "It's wonderful, Mr. Ticer."

"A little bit of all right," Dicky added emphatically and the grins broadened.

They really had accomplished wonders. The part of the basement which we had agreed to set off for the use of the boys already had the plasterboard walls and ceiling completed. The floor was about half laid and the raised platform at one end was finished. The rough bookcases were in place at one side and four strong benches of varying heights were in construction.

"I never thought you'd be able to get so much done at this time," I told Mr. Ticer.

"You know the boys were a lot of help till they got tired," he said. "But I was glad they got fed up when they did, for I was afraid they would catch on. What's the platform for? they'd ask, and I'd tell 'em I guessed you wanted to have some private the-atri-cals, you and Mister Graham and your friends. And I told them Mr. Graham wanted to have some books down here and make a billiard table. They was plenty excited over that, but I told 'em they needn't count on it, only big folks would be allowed to play. It was just after that they begun to git tired of working. But I made 'em stick to it, and finally told 'em that they could not come down here at all if they didn't work. I knew that would fix 'em. I haven't seen hair nor hide of 'em since. But I really ought to have some curtains up to those windows now. If they should get a good look at these benches and the ring we're going to make on the floor and——"

"I'll see that you have the curtains by tomorrow," I said.

"When will the billiard tables be out?" Dicky said lowering his voice instinctively.

"They promised them solemnly for day after tomorrow. I had them sent to Mr. Ticer's house."

"Good. But how in the world are we ever going to get all this truck down here, with those four lads on the job?"

"You don't need most of it down till Christmas Eve, do you?" Sam Ticer asked.

"No, but—"

"Don't you worry. I'll see to everything. We have our Christmas Eve early and we're all ready for bed about half-past ten. That's about the time you folks are getting into good swing. If you can get the boys off to bed by that time, me and Jerry and the old woman'll come over and we'll have this fixed up in no time.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Let Years Temper Urge for Strenuous Sports

Once upon a time there was a philosopher who talked of many things. He told his students: "If you lift a calf every day you can lift it when it gets to be a cow!"

Dr. Copeland

Alas! there comes a day when, try as you will, sweat and strain, you just can't get the beast off all four feet. There is a limit to human effort.

Another man was sure that regular exercise of the eyes by daily reading would make it possible to go on to the end of life without spectacles. But, sure as fate, the day comes when the type blurs beyond possibility of recognition.

Natural law operates to defeat our will and fondest hopes. Age is inexorable. We must bow to the inevitable.

What makes me say all this? A letter from the editor of the Toronto Star called my attention to four sudden deaths from heart disease among Canadian curlers this past winter. This wise man is worried over the dangers of strenuous exercise for men past middle age.

He has a right to be worried. My friends, men and women past middle life cannot do with safety what they did in early life with ease. There comes a time when the calf is too heavy and the eyes too feeble to do what our minds try to make us believe we can continue to do.

The other day I had a letter from a famous retired officer, a general in the World War. In rejecting my appeal that he participate in a public function he whimsically said: "The old gray mare, she ain't what she used to be!"

Why can't other wise men realize this?

Curling, bowling, polo, tennis and even swimming and golf can be a menace to the welfare of those along in life. Some of these sports make too violent demands on the heart and blood vessels; others, if too long continued, produce dangerous fatigue.

As we advance in life, the warnings that stop the youth become less compelling. Pain is not so acute in age. We are not so aware ourselves of what the onlooker may observe. In short, we can easily overexert ourselves and yet be unconscious of what we are doing until we wake up in the hospital. Unfortunately, the awakening may be in another world.

As we grow older, the blood vessel walls become harder just as lumber hardens with age. The vessels are brittle and easily broken. Sudden exertion throws such pressure on the inelastic tissues that they may give way, causing bleeding into the brain perhaps, with sudden death just ahead.

Don't gamble with your appearance and feeling of health. Age has its compensations, but physical intemperance is not one of them. It is better sometimes to be an excited onlooker, than to face the dangers of participating in a strenuous contest.

Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

If a girl doesn't want to "look like that" when she goes out and places herself in the public eye she should put on her make up before a magnifying mirror which shows up errors of technique. With eye shadows that are green, blue, brown or purple—as the case may be—there should be no quick service. Eye shadows even more than lip smear can look very messy. Blue eyelash pencils are seen in cosmetic counters, but they aren't finding many buyers. Make-up is being soft pedaled, as befits the moods and modes of the moment. It is going subtle and tricky.

Surprising what happens to a girl's complexion when she puts her mind on the matter of looking after her health, acquiring vitality and building firm muscles. All she has to do is to let the little dogs travel over three or four miles of pavement every day, let the clock tick through nine hours when she gets her sleep, take into her system sufficient groceries to supply the body with repair material, wash out her lungs with fresh air, and see to it that her disposition and nervous system aren't jumpy.

Here is the well-elegant exercise for reducing large hips and flattening a protruding tummy. Get down on the floor on all fours. Lift the right leg high and stretch out straight. Same with the left leg. Sounds easy to do, but it isn't. . . . It pulls hard on the muscles of the thighs, and disposes of adipose tissues that may be increasing the measurements.

Do you know that a mixture of powder and cold cream—much more powder than cream, naturally—makes a good application? Rub it into the skin with the finger ends. In ten minutes apply more powder. Elegant! Try it.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Acknowledging Introductions

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When I attended the last social affair I was introduced to a gentleman and I said, "I am pleased to meet you." Then, on leaving, he said, "I am glad to have met you." What should I have said? READER.

When the gentleman was introduced to you (this is the correct form, not the lady to the gentleman), you should have said, "How do you do." This is always correct for the acknowledgement of an introduction

Then, when he said, when he was leaving, "I am glad to have met you," you should have said, "Thank You. I am very happy to have met you, too," or "Thank you. It has been a great pleasure to meet you, too," or "Thank you. I have enjoyed so much our talk together, and I hope that I am to see you again some time."

Telegraphing Congratulations to the Happy Pair

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Please tell me to whom I should address a telegram of congratulations for an engagement, the reception being given by the parents of the bride-to-be at a hotel. The young man is the only one I know. Should I start the telegram by saying "Mr. So and So and Miss?"

CONSTANT READER.

If you are sending your telegram of congratulations at the time of the reception it would be best to address it to Miss Alicia Browne and Mr. George Wood.

Marmalade and Cream Cheese Problems

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. Is it correct to eat marmalade with a spoon or to put it on toast with a knife?

2. Should cream cheese be eaten with a fork, or put on crackers with a knife? D. B.

1. It is best to put it on the toast with the individual butter-knife. The pieces of toast should be small, one or two mouthfuls.

2. This, too, should be spread on the cracker with the individual butter-knife.

PASTORS FIGHT SUNDAY BALL MEASURES

Ministers Denounce Attack On Blue Law; Put Faith In Governor for Veto

Sermons in defense of Pennsylvania's blue laws, and in protest against the pending legislation in Harrisburg to change them were given in several churches of the Pittsburgh district yesterday.

Asserting advocacy of Sunday baseball is wholly a commercial move to increase professional baseball profits, the Rev. Dr. W. Wofford T. Duncan denied public sentiment demands a change. The statement was made last night in an address to the Masonic Veterans of Pennsylvania, guests at Emory Methodist Episcopal Church, North Highland avenue and Rippey street.

'SPORTS' ASSAILED

Dr. Duncan said:

"The sports who want Sunday ball have never been champions of law observance. Why is it, then, that their consciences are so terribly disturbed over illegal games? What they want is professional baseball on Sunday."

SEES SENATE DEFEAT

The Rev. Robert M. Blackwood, general secretary of the Sabbath Association of Western Pennsylvania, spoke yesterday in the Aspinwall United Presbyterian and Methodist Episcopal churches. Action was taken in both churches against the anti-Sabbath legislation now pending. He said:

"If the milk bill, with an amendment for professional baseball, is passed in the House on its third reading, I do not believe it can get by in the Senate. If it does, it cannot escape the Governor's veto."

The Rev. Dr. A. R. Robinson, pastor of the Sixth United Presbyterian Church, denounced Sunday baseball and its advocates in a sermon last night. He said:

"The only thing back of this is greed of money. You can thank God for a Governor who would stand between the church people and all attempts to break down the Sabbath."

Dr. Robinson is a former baseball player. While he preached, the catcher of his college team was sitting in the first row.

DELAY ON BALL VOTE SOUGHT

mann, of Delaware County; Kleckner, of Lehigh; I. B. Williams, of Cambria; Baldridge, of Allegheny, and possibly one or two Luzerne County men to vote for passage.

One vote the liberals believe they have lost is that of Squibbs, of Berks County, who was to be brought from a sick bed on a stretcher so he could record an "aye." His physician is said to have refused to permit it.

That the administration and possibly the Governor, would like to see the measure defeated was indicated by a barrage of predictions from men close to Pinchot, who are saying:

"The Governor will veto it anyhow."

PINCHOT STAND UNEASY

In the event the bill is passed by both legislative branches, it was pointed out that it would embarrass the Governor to sign, or leave unsigned, a local option measure. In this it meets expressed approval. In applying to blue law change it meets with previous expression of disapproval.

A similar situation was recalled by veterans of the previous Pinchot administration in respect to the boxing bill which legalized decisions in prize fights in the state. In spite of opposition from certain labeled reform groups the executive signed the bill.

The Denning bill providing for a Sunday baseball referendum is also on the calendar for final passage. It is likely that it will not be reached until tomorrow.

Claims that the bill may be held "unconstitutional" have been made for it. A substitute measure has been pickled in the Law and Order Committee. It was originally planned to have the second bill substitute for the first to avoid the criticism of unconstitutionality.

LILY PONS TO SING 'MAD SCENE' IN RADIO CONCERT TONIGHT

WE NOW PRESENT

By DARRELL V. MARTIN, Radio Editor.

Lily Pons makes her second radio appearance on Columbia-WJAS at 8:30 tonight. Typical of her success at the Metropolitan, she has chosen to do the Mad Scene from "Lucia di Lammermoor." More familiarly, however, we may find greater enjoyment in "Lo, Hear the Gentle Lark" and "The Music Box." Lily Pons is 26, married to a Dutch lawyer. After hearing this coloratura sing the Bell Song from "Lakme" not many Sundays ago, we were rhapsodized into requesting the Polonaise from "Mignon" which the French star promises in an early radio concert. The world premiere of the film, "Dirigible," on KQV at 8 o'clock; Martha Attwood and The Revelers in songs of India and Persia, WCAE at 9:30, and the return of Dick Powell, KDKA at 11:15, are other high spots in a brilliant radio evening.

Morton Downey's political complex has moved him to hold another election. This time he wants listeners to pick the best-loved "Mother" song for next Sunday's program. Tally one for "Mother" from "My Maryland."

Girls who count and classify the fan mail at downtown studios have lots of fun deciphering some of the addresses. Last week Jim Hughes was the victim of "Jim Youse" and in three days the Red Arrow Quartet was variously approached as "Red Owl," "Red Arry," "Red Apple" and "Rare Hour."

He is accredited with having "discovered" Jessica Dragonette, Alfred Shirley, Arthur Allen and other NBC stars.

THAT Paul Whiteman joins KYW on Saturday, May 16?

THAT it is possible for NBC to reach in one night more people than lived in the United States in 1850? The official census in 1850 was 23,191,873. The potential audience of a coast-to-coast network is 24,000,000.

The LOUDSPEAKER

By LOUIS REID

NEW YORK, May 4.—Walter Damrosch continues his praiseworthy work of tracking down new works by those young American composers whose ambitions soar further than hill billy ballads and Cuban tangos.

Damrosch is a valuable asset of the broadcasters. In spite of his 70-odd years he has a youthful spirit. Even today he can be as enthusiastic over the "William Tell Overture" as if he had not become the backbone of every brass band's repertory. But his greatest glow comes when he can introduce to the divans a new work by a native composer who has knocked in vain at the door of Toscanini.

He has been unusually sympathetic to Robert Braine, has given the world premiere of such widely contrasted works by this composer as "SOS" an impressionistic hymn to wireless and "The Song of Hiawatha," a suite which catches something of the melodious spirit of Longfellow's poem.

Most Indian music written in America is heavy with tom-toms, tribal dances, war whoops. Noise—plenty of it—has been its chief characteristic. Braine departs from this tradition. Melody has been his aim. The third movement of the "Hiawatha" work, entitled "The Son of the Evening Star," introduces one of the most entrancing melodies that has yet been written on an Indian theme. One seems to hear in its subdued violins and cellos the soft lapping of water on birch canoes, suggesting that Indians between scalp-hunting and war-dancing occasionally found time to make love.

For his weekly evening concert Damrosch herds his musicians on the stage of N. B. C.'s Times Square Theater—nearly 50 of them. He directs them from a small platform, protected on all sides by a high railing—something like a circus ticket seller's rostrum. Before the program begins he relaxes on a couch in an anteroom of the studio. It was there we found him.

Damrosch talks frankly. Particularly about jazz, says it will continue to baffle European composers, that Americans are the only ones who can give it vitality; believes that Gershwin has best captured its spirit to date; regards Stravinsky as dead inside (he tapped his heart to indicate his meaning); is annoyed by those conductors who gesticulate all over the place.

* * *

An electric bell summons him to the stage. He mounts his box to play a brief introduction to the program, dismounts to make way for Floyd Gibbons, radio's machine gun. He has 10 minutes on his hands. He spends most of them strumming extemporaneously on a piano (Gibbons' chatter is coming from a distant point). Again he mounts the box and his concert is on. As he reaches the final notes of each selection he turns to his audience, beams and bows his attitude suggesting that the time has come for applause. Nice, discreet applause.

AN ELECTRIC REFRIGERATOR for the Hostess who wants her home to reflect good taste

She wants her friends to think well of her home . . . of the good taste that furnished it . . . of the good management that governs it . . . of the hospitality that brightens it for her friends and makes them want to come again and again.

What a joy an electric refrigerator always is to such a person! How easy it makes entertaining! What a help to have plenty of ice cubes . . . new frozen desserts . . . and, especially, GOOD FOOD, always fresh, and so appetizing, so delicious that it never fails to bring the well known sigh of satisfaction.

And, just think! . . . A small down payment is all it takes to put one into YOUR kitchen. At once the kitchen drops its rather drab look and goes modern. It becomes popular. Guests like to visit it . . . and, sh-sh-sh! . . . for perhaps the first time in your life you're altogether PROUD to have them gather 'round in YOUR kitchen!

Why wait? Get your electric refrigerator now!

Appetizing food, daintily prepared, in greater variety . . . this becomes an easy actuality when you have an electric refrigerator. With a whole new variety of dishes which can be prepared . . . with the advantage of constant, safe refrigeration temperatures that keep large quantities of food, cooked and uncooked, perfectly fresh and perfectly delicious until you're ready to use them . . . the menu problem is SOLVED!

FROCKS
Are Printed Ensembles—
For Morning, Noon and Night

$25

The new frock is a "soft" frock. The smart frock uses color contrast in prints. The prize of the year goes to the frock that can be converted from a sports to a street, a street to an afternoon, or an afternoon to an evening frock—by means of an accompanying coat or jacket.

These modish new sheers and sheer prints and printed crepes are being snapped up by smart women in our $25 Dress Shop—for good fashion and value reasons!

—Second Floor—

COATS
From May First Differ From Those That Came Before

$59.50

They have an exquisite simplicity that dispenses with excess decoration—and gets right down to the business of revealing slim body lines with suave cut and tailoring. We have made a recent purchase of superb models in foremost fabrics—and can offer you outstanding values in coats to wear anywhere "from now on."

SPORTS AND TRAVEL COATS—of unbelievably soft, rich tweeds, with flat fur collars—such as the one sketched upper right.

—Second Floor—

Smart New Hats
Highlight Brimmed Straws

$5—$10

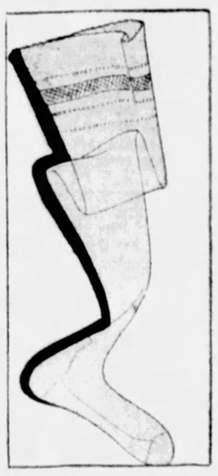
Ninety-nine out of every hundred new hats are brims, and tilt up on one side, down on the other. Made of straw and every other imaginable fabric that is light on the head and can be manipulated to make a frame for the face and head.

Come expecting shallower crowns, dark and light colors, much white. The price—for the quality—is gratifyingly the lowest in town!

—Second Floor—

Lace Top Hose
New and "Ladylike"

$1.50



Dresses aren't getting shorter this season, but they show the detailed workmanship inside that makes them look far more expensive outside. The same is true of hose with lace tops.

They're practical hose, for a woven-in ravel stop beneath the lace that stops the runs above.

And they are by no means expensive hose—for we feature a gorgeously sheer, all-silk chiffon, Surety hose—4 thread, 45 gauge, high twist—with cradle foot and French heel—at only $1.50. In thirteen new, lighter summer shades.

—First Floor—

Nemoflex Breezetex
A Cool Summer Foundation

$5
Regularly $6.50

Made of ventilated batiste, mesh and elastic—three cooling summer materials. An innerbelt sufficient to hold a heavy figure in place molds you in the new form-fitting, but not restraining manner. This model has an uplift bust and a center godet to insure sitting comfort. For one week only this garment is temporarily reduced to $5.

—Second Floor—

New Season Gloves
Do Not "Fit Like a Glove"

$6.50

They're longer—wider—and a size too large. It's smart to wrinkle them carelessly at both hand and wrist. The one we've sketched is 8-button Black or White Kid with contrasting stitching—the accepted glove for all daytime wear. Or you may have it in an exquisite quality suede—in Eggshell and the new neutral beige colors.

The vestee is nice of organdy, lace, batiste or silk crepe in contrasting tone. Blue and grey, red and white, brown and gold, beige and eggshell, yellow and white are just a few seasonal favorites.

HIGHWAY BANK PERMIT ASKED

Application for a federal permit to construct an embankment for the support of a highway on the left bank of the Ohio River has been made by the Pittsburgh and Lake Erie Railroad Company, it was learned today. The embankment, it is said, will begin at a point immediately below the Pittsburgh and Lake Erie Railroad Bridge, spanning the river at Monaca and extending downstream for a distance of 6,600 feet. The fill, which will be made in the sixth pool, will be 35 feet wide at its greatest width.

The Carnegie teel Company is contemplating construction of two batteries of boilers, consisting of eight shells, it is said. They will be placed on the steamers William Whigham and Clairton.

One thousand Boy Scouts who are to take part in the city-wide traffic count May 21, sponsored by the Better Traffic Committee, will receive instructions and assignments in the Pirate Hall of the William Penn Hotel this Saturday and Saturday, May 16, according to Lewis W. McIntyre, city traffic engineer.

Scouts of Troops 1 to 75 of the Allegheny Council West will meet Saturday. Scouts from Troops 76 to 312 will receive their instructions the following Saturday. In exchange the Malone Plumbing Supply Company gave title to the four-story building at 208-10 First avenue, reports J. F. McClurg, realtor who closed the deal. The First avenue property is on a lot measuring 30x80 feet. The warehouse is constructed on a tract 312 feet along Wharton street and extending 120 feet to an alley.

An improved property in South Aiken avenue, Eighth Ward, has been conveyed by the Fidelity Trust Company to Joseph J. Heisel for $13,500. The lot measures 50x150 feet.

NATIONAL GAS TAX OPPOSED

Opposition throughout the country will be given the proposal to levy a national gasoline tax of one cent a gallon in addition to state fuel taxes, C. H. Roth, vice president of the American Motorists' Association and secretary of the Pittsburgh Motor Club, said today. The proposed tax, advocated by Senator Hiram Bingham, of Connecticut, is designed to compensate the government for the federal-aid highway program. Roth said:

"Motorists last year paid a total of $878,000,000 in registration and gasoline taxes. The proposed tax, adding another 137 millions to the burden of motorists, would mean over a billion dollars per year in motor vehicle taxes to be paid by motorists in addition to personal and other general revenues."

THE PENALTY of GRAY HAIR

Gray hair—age—slipping. All these unpleasant ideas seem to go together. Yet, it is not at all necessary. Gray Hair often comes to a young head and people who have it are neither old nor incapable. But how often you hear people say, "Why, she has gray hair!" and—she is on the shelf.

This penalty need no longer handicap the woman who uses Canute Water. This is a clear, spring-like water, of wonderful properties which actually restore hair to its original girlhood color. No complicated "color plan"; no danger of getting brunette shade when your hair is blonde. Not only the one kind but the one bottle is enough. It really is surprisingly what successful, youthifying results it gives.

Apply Canute Water yourself, in the privacy of your own home. Many women in town are doing the same thing; they simply do not mention it. You need not mention it either. Just buy a bottle from any good druggist—and get rid of the "age-penalty" in gray hair. Canute Water is so safe, so scientific and sure that your dealer knows it will satisfy you; if not, he will refund your money. Sold and recommended by Kaufmann's and all Mayflower Drug Stores or your own druggist. —The Canute Co., Milwaukee, Wis.

2 Simply lift this flap and you will break the specially devised air-seal

3 Hold package as shown and with your thumbs push it part way out of Humidor Pack

4 To avoid tearing tin foil, slip first finger of each hand under Revenue stamp and break it

5 Help yourself to a fresh cigarette, then slide package back into its Humidor Pack

6 Close package. It guards Camels from dust and germs and provides sanitary protection

THE moment you open the new Camel Humidor Pack you begin to note the advantages of this new, scientific and sanitary method of wrapping Camel cigarettes.

At once you are greeted with the delightful aroma that comes from choicest Turkish and mellowest Domestic tobaccos in prime condition.

Your sense of touch also detects the freshness of Camels, for unlike moisture-robbed cigarettes Camels are pliable to the fingers.

But the real difference comes when you light a Camel and inhale its cool, fragrant smoke.

Cigarettes brought to you so perfectly conditioned deserve to be kept that way in your pocket.

That will keep intact the mildness and freshness that is making the whole country say: "Now I'd walk two miles for a Camel because they're twice as good."

Then go back tomorrow, if you can.

BOY HERO ALLY OF HOOVER

KANSAS CITY, May 4.—(AP.)—Bryan Untiedt, 13-year-old hero of the Towner (Col.) school bus tragedy, is returning from a visit to the White House with manifest admiration for President Hoover, and a new rifle. Arriving here by train, he said:

"I had a wonderful time. The President was very good to me."

Within a neat canvas and leather case the lad carried the rifle, a weapon well fitted for hunting the coyotes and pheasants about his home.

Secret service men guarded the youth from the curious as they had since he started for Washington to tell the President of experiences in the snowdrift-marooned bus in which five school mates froze to death, despite his aid.

New Work Predicted For Juvenile Court

Work in the Juvenile Court in the future will be concerned with preventive measures rather than in punishing the child for present wrongdoing, Judge D. Paulson Foster, speaking at a meeting of the Bible Class of the Mt. Lebanon United Presbyterian Church, said yesterday. Two hundred and fifty members of the class were present.

All In A Day

By Mark Hellinger

SOME TEN YEARS AGO a certain gentleman was working for a commission firm in a western town. He was a shrewd individual and extremely capable of earning an honest living. But he didn't feel that way about life. He was one of those birds who would rather live on a dollar stolen than $5 earned.

In addition to his bookkeeping duties, he was entrusted by his firm with the daily bank deposits. This was a swell situation for him. The firm's funds were as safe with him as a loose herring in the Bronx.

He began by swiping small sums, but he soon grew more ambitious. He finally planned one big coup. If that was successful, he would hit for New York, where the pickings were easy for a gentleman with brains. But first he would propose to and marry a girl with whom he was smitten.

So he went to her.

"If you'll have me," he told her, "we'll be married at once. For reasons of my own, I don't want anybody to know about it. We'll drive to a nearby town and be married there. Then we'll go right to New York, where the big dough lies.

"I'm crazy about you, honey. What do you say?"

The girl nodded. She had no idea the man was a crook. And even if she had, it probably would not have made very much difference. For she loved the man, you see.

"No," he said earnestly, "I feel that my work lies in New York."

Whereupon his bosses gave him a substantial bonus and permitted him to leave. He drove some 50 miles with his fiancee, was married in a small town and caught the train for New York.

* * *

The years passed. Before six months had elapsed, the wife learned that her husband was untrue to her. But what was she to do? She loved the man.

He schemed and planned and arranged his crooked deals. Some six years later, he had accumulated a fortune that ran to $100,000.

His home life now was little more than nothing. If he came to his house once a week, it was something of a sensation. Finally he failed to come home at all.

Now the wife grew tired. She went to her attorney and explained the circumstances. The lawyer advised a legal separation.

Papers were drawn up and the husband was served. But the husband—through his attorney, of course—took a most amazing course. Instead of issuing a general denial, he immediately asserted that this woman was not his wife. He went even further. He said that he had never met the woman in his entire life!

The wife was astounded. She could prove by many people that she had lived with this man. But, her lawyer told her, that would all come later. The first thing to do would be to get a photostatic copy of the marriage record. The attorney immediately communicated with a lawyer in a small western town.

The western barrister searched high and low—but his efforts were unavailing. There was no record. Perhaps some one had been bribed, perhaps the page had been stolen—but whatever the cause there was no record to show that this couple had been legally wedded.

The lawyer was enraged. He wanted to press the suit through varying affidavits. But the wife shook her head.

"No," she said, "I don't want it that way. Leave things the way they are. Perhaps it is better so."

The wife opened a beauty parlor on Broadway. She succeeded where so many have failed. Her profits were large.

Today this woman has a number of beauty shops throughout the city. You may find her any day in her Broadway shop, which is the biggest money maker of the lot. She has been extremely successful . . .

* * *

During the stock crash last year her husband lost every cent he had. He was in a bad way. Accustomed to living high, he did not know which way to turn. He finally decided to return to his wife.

"After all," he told himself, "she was always crazy about me. She has plenty of coin now. Let her support me for a while. Why not?"

So, hat in hand, he entered her Broadway beauty parlor one afternoon a few days later. He sent in word that he wanted to see his wife. She came out. He looked at her.

"I've come back to you, dear," he murmured easily. "I find that I always loved you and I'm sorry for what I've done."

The wife bit her lip. She excused herself for a moment, stepped out of the office and returned in a few seconds with a policeman. Then she smiled bitterly.

"Officer," she cried, "will you please throw this annoying man out of my office? I never saw him in my life." . . .

PROMOTER HELD IN SLAYING

SALT LAKE CITY, May 4.—(AP.)—Charles Peter, mining promoter, was held today on a warrant charging first degree murder in the slaying of Dorothy Dexter Moormeister, Salt Lake City matron, on a country road more than a year ago.

Peter, questioned in the county jail, repeated statements he made at the inquest, at which he was a prominent figure. He said he was not intimately acquainted with Mrs. Moormeister and was thrown into contact with her through friedship for her husband, Dr. Frank Moormeister, well-to-do physician.

He said February 21, 1930, the night she was slain, robbed of jewels and disfigured under the wheels of a motor car, he was at his home, but admitted he had accompanied her on an automobile ride a week before.

CAPONE DENIED IMMUNITY

CHICAGO, May 4.—(INS.)—Al Capone's conditional surrender for questioning about the torch murder of "Mike De Pike" Heitler, gangster, was turned down vehemently today by Pat Roche, state's attorney's chief investigator.

The surrender, offered through the gang chief's attorneys, was refused because it entailed the condition that Capone was not to be locked up after his questioning.

Roche declared:

"Tell him to go to hell. We'll get him anyway, and when we do, we'll keep him behind the bars as long as the courts will allow us."

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Society Folks Preparing For Show

At last things are beginning to happen! And before long, so fast does time go, we are going to have a most exciting horse show, the Allegheny Counrty Club event on June 4, 5 and 6 in the show ring, Sewickley Heights. And that will be followed by a series of hunter trials and other horse shows.

Yesterday morning a large group of folks gathered at the show ring to exercise their mounts, try jumps, and chat about the various events.

Mrs. Maitland Alexander, who is a member of the box and parking space committee, drove up with Mrs. John H. Ricketson, Jr., to watch the riders.

* * *

Mrs. James M. Schoonmaker, wearing a smart gray tweed sports coat and felt hat to match,

Watching Tryouts

I saw chatting with Malcolm McGiffen and George Mann, both of whom were among the Sunday morning riders.

Sitting on the fence surrounding the ring were two young aides on the publicity committee, Madelaine Alexander and Betty Childs, debs of the past winter. Both wore smart tweed sport coats and hats. Still another spectator was attractive Mrs. J. Bernd Rose, who wore a vivid orange rough-spun coat.

Among the riders were young Peggy and Cherry Bakewell, daughters of the Donald C. Bakewells, of Sewickley; Mary Franklin Robinson; Genevieve Lord Bell, the junior Henry Clay Bughmans, their daughter Betty, Mrs. George Benny and Margaret Holdship.

* * *

And the junior William Christopher Robinsons were riding, and the Alexander Laughlin Robinsons were spectators.

Besides the joys of the horse show, there are the many attendant entertainments to anticipate. Of course, the event of events of the show is the riding and driving party, with everybody in costume, given by the William Christopher Robinsons at Franklin Farm, their Sewickley Heights place, at the end of the first day of the show.

Costume Event

On the second day Mrs. Lewis Q. Park will give a tea at her estate, Farm Hill, Sewickley Heights. And there'll be many more entertainments, I'm sure.

Yesterday I told you about a number of folks who would be on committees, and today I want to mention more.

Mrs. Henry Clay Bughman, Jr., will be chairman of the trophies committee, and Mrs. George A. Benney, Jr., Mrs. T. M. Jones III, Mary McCune, Gretchen Schoonmaker, Mrs. William Penn Snyder, Jr., Mrs. John Ormsby Burgwin, Mrs. James M. Schoonmaker, Jr., and Mrs. Thomas Atterbury McGinley will be her aides.

* * *

J. Frederic Byers is chairman of the entertainment committee, assisted by Dr. Maitland Alexander,

Aiding Leaders

Maj. W. P. Barndollar, W. G. Costin, J. Denniston Lyon, R. T. M. McCready, Richard Beatty Mellon, Mrs. Lewis A. Park, Mrs. Henry R. Rea, William Bacon Schiller and George R. Hann.

On the refreshment committee will be Mrs. T. McKee Graham, chairman; Mrs. Frank Faber Brooks, Mrs. J. T. Brooks, Mrs. J. C. Chaplin, Mrs. C. L. Doyle, Mrs. H. B. Higgins, Mrs. R. G. Jennings, Mrs. R. S. Richards and Mrs. H. H. Robinson.

Arranging the music are Mrs. William Bacon Schiller, chairman, and Mrs. Percy E. Donner and John H. Ricketson III.

Pittsburgh folks will be interested in a wedding that is to take place on June 16 in Memphis, Tenn. The bride-to-be is Florence Laws, and she will marry J. Carrington Brown, Jr., of Pittsburgh and Baltimore, Md. Because of the recent death of the bride-elect's mother, the wedding will be a quiet affair and will take place in the home of her aunt, Mrs. Peter Grant.

Will Wed In June

Florence is a graduate of the Masters' School, Dobbs Ferry, and of the Sarah Lawrence College, Bronxville, N. Y. Her fiance, a member of the faculty of Shadyside Academy, is a graduate of Johns Hopkins University and a member of the Baltimore Assembly and the Bachelors' Cotillion Club.

On Saturday afternoon, April 25, at 4:30 o'clock, in the Dormont Methodist Episcopal Church,

Weds In Church

Miss Elizabeth Jane Perry, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Perry, of Broadway, Dormont, became the bride of John Charles Phillips, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. John Charles Phillips, of Emsworth. The Rev. A. W. Renton, pastor, officiated before an embankment of ferns, crotons, American beauty roses and yellow snapdragons.

CUTS SILK HOSE BILLS IN TWO

A New York fashion expert has found a simple, easy method to double the wear of silk hose and undergarments. These articles, worn next to the skin, wear out doubly fast because of the perspiration and other body excretions which soften and rot the silk.

This expert found that soap and water were inadequate for washing such articles. She recommends when washing silks to add a tablespoonful of Energine to every quart of lukewarm, soapy water. Wash and rinse as usual. This method not only cleans thoroughly and quickly but makes silks like new with revived colors and pleasing freshness. With Energine the results over soap and water alone will amaze you. It means longer life—real economy.

Energine is unexcelled also for quickly removing all dirt and grease spots from dresses, hats, gloves and ties. Large can 35 cents at any drug store.

LATEST VOGUE IN COSTUME JEWELRY SHOWN BY STYLIST

Sketched in Paris

Paris Bureau,
Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, May 4.—The cost of costume jewelry is again an item to be reckoned with, and marked down in the sartorial budget. For after a partial eclipse for a couple of seasons costume jewelry is back again, bigger and better than ever. And judging from the interest displayed by various buyers and stylists, it looks as though we will all be thronging the counters, where these items will be shown this summer. Of course, this type of jewelry must be used with discretion.

* * *

THE DAMSEL loaded down with an olla podrida of glass, galalith and other composition materials, in various odd and startling designs and colors, did much to kill the costume jewelry craze. But, since we have all learned much of color and design of recent months, there should be little danger of these fearful pictures again presenting themselves. It really would be awful if such carelessness was displayed in the use of the Algerian pieces that look as though they were in for a colorful career.

* * *

TO HELP YOU in your choice of costume pieces we have had sketched two of the latest offerings in that field. They are both from Jenny. The piece at the extreme right is a bracelet for sports or tailored wear, although no doubt it will be copied and worn, with a soft chiffon frock, by the costume jewelry addicts. The rigid part encircling the arm is of tortoise-shell and at the ends, which are open, are two carved balls, one in tortoise shell, the other in coral, mounted on a modernistic plaque of silver. The flat collar and bracelet, also from Jenny, are formed of jade beads strung on fine wire and closing with large flat clasps of silver. To each is attached a tassel of graduated beads.

HEJAZ KINGDOM UPHELD BY U. S.

WASHINGTON, May 4.—(AP.)—Formal recognition of the kingdom of the Hejaz and Nejd, embracing the ancient peoples of the Arabian Peninsula and an area three times the size of France, was announced last night by the State Department.

Recognition was accorded the dual kingdom through the American embassy in London and the Hejazi minister there. The kingdom, ruled over by its founder, Abdul-Aziz Ibn Abdul Rahman Al Faisal Al Saud, generally known as Ibn Saud, has been recognized by nearly all of the principal governments of Europe and has treaty relations with several of them. Ibn Saud is a direct descendant of Mohammed Ibn Saud, the earliest important convert of the Wahhabi sect of Islam.

Lilies, Rings and Brides

By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER

Next month will be the month of brides. There will also be some grooms.

We like the descriptions of those society June weddings. The bride always wears a white satin gown of any material.

Her dress is heavily embroidered with pearls that haven't got much second-hand value. Her tulle veil is smothered with seed pearls, which do not prevent her from breathing at all.

Then there is a pearl Juliet cap, and to toss more sails to the breeze, she has a string of pearls around her neck which are the gift of the bridegroom.

She carries a bouquet of lilies so big she looks like a moose crashing through a thicket.

She wears a corsage of lilies-of-the-alley. And the bridegroom?

Well, he's got a knife home with a pear handle that his uncle gave him 16 years ago for not biting his finger nails.

If his uncle was at this wedding he would make his nephew give him back the knife.

There are 11 bridesmaids in frocks of white tuffed chiffon and hats of fine white straw. They carry small white vanity cases and look very, very beautiful.

And the groom? He's just there, that's all.

There is a bird hanging around with little to do. They call him the best man. This is the only place where he would be. Set him down in the Navy yard and they would soon give him his proper rating.

We never yet saw a best man who was a good attorney for the defense. All he does is to keep nudging the groom in the ribs with his elbow and giggling out of step.

Fortunately, this is no new experience for either the happy couple or the more fortunate spectators.

The bride has already been marriaged three or four times and the groom has been around too.

BURGLAR LOOTS HOME OF PASTOR

SIDEWALKS of PITTSBURGH

By William Pfarr

Mrs. James Blair, of the East End, received a letter from her daughter a few days ago which made her feel good—so good, in fact, that she rushed to the telephone to spread the news among her friends. She was, Mrs. Blair announced happily, going to be a grandmother in the near future.

William Pfarr

The letter was from Mary Blair, Mrs. Blair's daughter, who was married a year or so ago. Now, Miss Blair is an actress of repute, living in New York, and at the moment resting.

A few days after she received the letter Mrs. Blair showed it to another daughter, Mrs. Lois Jansen, who read it more carefully than her mother and pointed out a correction which changed the complexion of things.

Miss Blair had written:

"I am waiting for stock."

In his personal appearance, Tom Joyce, the registration commissioner, is as correct as the best-dressed man. But he does not give the same attention to his aged automobile. Since it left the factory these many years ago the Joyce vehicle has not enjoyed a bath. So it was altogether fitting when Commissioner Joyce was guiding his bus through the entrance to Riverview Park that the policeman on guard hailed him, motioned him to turn about and said:

"Sorry, buddy, no trucks allowed in this here park."

They're an elderly couple and they live in Beechview. Since they were married many years ago they've seldom gone any place unless they were together. They're extremely religious and they're brought up their children as model offspring.

But a few nights ago the wife decided she wanted to go to prayer meeting. In the absence of a maid, the husband had to stay home and mind the children.

She had been gone a half-hour, during which he marched up and down the house worrying over her absence. Finally, with the air of one who has lost his best friend, he turned to his children and declared:

"See, after all these years your mother has started running around."

When Ambrose Weems, the radio man, was in town last week he told about the caption he wrote once for an advertisement: "The Incinerator With an Air of Distinction." . . . At his summer home at Madison Lakelands, Fred Mercer, the attorney, goes in for rare plants, especially the expensive coster, of which he has several hundred . . . A straight-laced young South Sider who objects to his sweetheart smoking cigarets checks up on her, after his absences, by looking for rouge on the butts in the ashtray. . . . Bob Garland is the so-called papa of daylight saving, but most of the dozen clocks in his home tell different times since he grouped them for a newspaper photographer last week . . . And one of 'em was broken. . . . With the revolver that Paul Jaworski used in his countless holdups and murders, Roy T. Clunk, the dashing district attorney's assistant, scored 99 out of 100 shots on the police range . . . But he did miss one. . . .

They will be open from 3:30 until 9 o'clock, daily, and will go on full 12-hour schedule beginning July 1. Heretofore city playgrounds have not been opened until the close of the public schools.

$1,400 HAUL TAKEN IN EAST END

Two Armed Men Rob Gasoline Station, Then Hire Taxi And Steal Driver's Money

When the Rev. A. R. Robinson, pastor of the Sixth United Presbyterian Church, at Highland avenue and Station street, returned to his home, 6100 Bryant street, after conducting services at the church last night, he found the house ransacked.

R. W. Davidson, of Preble avenue, reported the theft of a violin which he valued at $3,000 to city detectives yesterday. Davidson reported that the instrument, his overcoat and $4 were stolen from him by two chance acquaintances on the North Side.

Two armed men early today held up Russel J. Bradele and B. Schlowski, attendants at an American Oil Company gas station at Beechwood boulevard and Flowers avenue, and robbed the cash register of $60. A short time later two men answering the description of the bandits hired a taxicab in Wylie avenue and told E. J. Klug, the driver, to take them to Baily avenue and Judicial street, where they robbed him of $11.

NEW AUTO CODE ON ACCIDENTS

(This is the fourth of a series of articles on proposed changes in the Pennsylvania motor code, now pending before the Legislature. The stories were prepared by the Pittsburgh Motor Club for the Sun-Telegraph.)

Proponents of improvements in state traffic regulations have submitted a change in the state motor code to the Legislature designed to do away with the numerous accidents now caused by fire and other emergency vehicles.

Although the motor code, as it stands, makes any municipality liable for damages caused by an employe while operating a municipal vehicle, it does not touch on the matter of volunteer fire apparatus.

Under the proposed change, the city, borough, town or township would be liable with any member of a volunteer fire company for damage caused by the negligence of the member while operating a vehicle used by or belonging to the fire company.

Advocates of this change contend that many deaths and injuries and much property damage are caused each year by reckless operation of volunteer fire apparatus. They believe the amendment would check this to a noticeable extent.

Another change proposed for the motor code would permit fire apparatus to use red lights on the front of all vehicles as well as on the rear as a warning to other drivers. At present the code forbids the use of a red light on the front of any motor vehicle.

RESERVOIR BILL NEWS AWAITED

JAMESTOWN, Pa., May 4.—Residents of the Pymatuning swamp district today awaited news of Gov. Pinchot's action on the bill which provides for construction of a great storage reservoir at a cost of $1,500,000. Flood protection and water supply for the proposed Ohio-Lake Erie Canal are two of the principal purposes to be served.

The proposed reservoir, according to information from the Water and Power Resources Board of the State Department of Forests and Waters, will cover about 10,400 acres of land, between Jamestown and Linesville, Pa., into Ohio.

Capacity is set at approximately 74,000,000,000 gallons, nine times larger than that of Conneaut Lake, and nearly as large as Lake Chautauqua. The shore line will extend about 70 miles, and the water will average in depth about 12 feet.

Auto Clubs Hold Auto Code Parley

Representatives of the local club will be Lewis W. McIntyre, vice president; C. H. Roth, secretary, and A. A. Bluestone, club attorney.

Pershing Ouster Demand Revealed By Marshal Foch

In yesterday's installment of his War Memoirs Marshal Foch told of the successful advances of the British armies in Belgium, as a result of which the Germans evacuated the entire Belgian coast in October, 1918. This liberated a large area of Belgium that had been held by the enemy since the early part of the war and eliminated the constant threat against the Channel ports. Marshal Foch told of his instructions for the British armies to press the Germans back all along their front with incessant attacks. At the same time he urged a continuation of the blows that were being delivered against the Germans in the Meuse-Argonne region, in which the American forces were playing a conspicuous part. He told of the great difficulties in transporting supplies that were being encountered by the American armies on their front but, nevertheless, recorded his opinion that the American troops were now in a position to strike the heaviest blows since their arrival on the Western Front.

By MARSHAL FERDINAND FOCH

CHAPTER XXXVII.

In order to augment the effort demanded of the American Army I did not hesitate to increase the scope of its command. The autonomy of this force had been fully established, and now, in order to effect a concordance between operations in the Argonne and those in Champagne, as well as a close union of efforts, Gen. Maistre, who in this region commanded the central group of French armies, was charged with assuring coordination between the operations of the French troops on the right of his group and those of the American 1st Army.

The slowing up of the Argonne operations had been otherwise interpreted in certain quarters, less acquainted with the difficulties encountered by commanders in handling the masses of modern armies. It was thus that Monsieur Clemenceau, impressed by the "marking time" of the American Army, wrote to me on October 21 the letter below, which had in view nothing less than to effect a change in the chief command of the American Army:

"I have postponed from day to day writing you about the crisis existing in the American army. It is not that I have anything to tell you regarding a

WILL ROGERS SAYS

SANTA MONICA, Cal., May 4.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

It is good news to know that there is one industry that is flourishing. Reno, Saturday, divorced everybody that had been there six weeks. They just took the hotel register of six weeks ago that day and issued a divorce to everybody whose names were on there. Some of them were people who had no intention of getting a divorce, but they are so rushed they haven't time to go over the lists and see who wants one and who don't. They figure its easier to let the few that didn't want one get married again. So be careful if you don't want one. Don't register or even be seen in Reno or six weeks later you will receive word you have been divorced, whether you are married or not.

Will Rogers

Yours, WILL.

DIRECTORY QUIZ WILL SHOW RADIO PREFERENCE HERE

BUYING HABITS SOUGHT BY SURVEY

160 Trained Enumerators Begin Canvass of Every Home in City; 18 Questions

How many Pittsburghers listen to Amos 'n' Andy? What is the average Pittsburgher's favorite broadcasting station? How many radio sets, vacuum cleaners, oil burners, pianos, washing machines, electric refrigerators, phonographs or electric ranges are there in Pittsburgh homes? How many homes have none of these conveniences?

These and a dozen other equally interesting questions will be answered by the commercial study now in progress with the gathering by R. L. Polk & Co. of data for the city's seventy-sixth annual directory. One hundred sixty trained enumerators today began combing the city bent on interviewing within the next 90 days every housewife or woman head of a family in the metropolitan area.

18 QUESTIONS

Eighteen questions asked by the enumerators will suffice not only to furnish the requisite name, addresses and occupations for the directory but also when the study is completed, to reveal accurately for the first time the buying habits and preferences of Mr. and Mrs. Average Pittsburgher.

Such an intensive inquiry has never been attempted in any other American city and merchandising experts all over the country are following with keen interest the progress of the local study. The information obtained in the study should be reflected eventually, it is asserted by officials of R. L. Polk & Co., in increased efficiency in merchandise distribution.

RADIO STUDY

A nationally known telephone executive disclosed that during the dinner hour broadcast of Amos 'n Andy, telephone calls slumped 85 per cent. It is expected that the current study will disclose a staggering number of hours in the aggregate devoted daily by Pittsburghers to their radios.

Likewise the study will disclose whether the average Pittsburgher is driving a used car and how old that car was when he bought it, whether he has a preference for certain gasoline, motor oil and tires and whether the average housewife buys her foodstuffs by brand names and customarily patronizes neighborhood stores for the bulk of the family requirements in food and clothing.

1ST MASS HERE OBSERVED

More than 300 Knights of Columbus met for breakfast yesterday in the Keystone Athletic Club, Wood street, to celebrate the one hundredth and seventy-seventh anniversary of the first mass said in the Pittsburgh district, following a special mass celebrated in St. Mary of Mercy Church by Bishop Boyle, his secretary, the Rev. Jerome D. Hannon, D. D., serving at the mass.

Past State Deputy John B. MacDonough was the toastmaster and Leo J. Aaron, grand knight of the Pittsburgh Council, introduced the Rev. Paul E. Campbell, superintendent of parochial schools, who delivered the address. The Rt. Rev. Hugh C. Boyle, bishop of Pittsburgh, pronounced the invocation.

Youth at Yukon Injured by Auto

Winfield Barckholf, 16, of Yukon, Pa., suffered a fractured skull when struck by an automobile driven, police say, by Frank J. Pozorick, also of Yukon. The youth was taken to McKeesport Hospital, where his condition is reported as serious.

MOOR INDUCTED AS NEW DEAN AT TRINITY

Bishop Administers Pledge At Impressive Ceremony; Parish Reception Tonight

With simple but impressive ceremonies, the Rev. Nathaniel Rue High Moor was installed as dean of Trinity Cathedral at services yesterday morning by the Rt. Rev. Alexander Mann, bishop of the Episcopal Diocese of Pittsburgh. The bishop administered the pledge of office to Mr. Moor, assisted by the Rev. Edward M. Wilson, canon of the cathedral; the Rev. Dr. John Dows Hills, president of the standing committee of the Diocese of Pittsburgh, and member of the cathedral chapter.

The dean announced that he hoped to make Trinity Cathedral a downtown cultural and religious center for all people, regardless of their religious affiliations. He stated that plans were now under way for the fulfillment of this purpose.

A reception to Dean and Mrs. Moor was to be tendered tonight, in Trinity House, which members of the parish were to attend.

$100,000 GIVEN FOR PALESTINE

Subscriptions of $100,000 were pledged by Western Pennsylvania Zionist leaders at two meeting in the Y. M & W. H. A., Bellefield avenue, yesterday, when pleas were made for aid to the fund of $5,000,000 being raised for the five-year reclamation plan for the acquisition of an "American Tract" in Palestine.

The subscriptions are to approximate $20,000 yearly during the next five years. They will be added to the Jewish National Colonization fund for reclaiming 50,000 acres in the tract. More than $1,000,000 already has been contributed by American Jews for the project.

Prominent speakers at the meetings were Abraham Goldberg, of New York, Jewish writer and lecturer, and Emanuel Neumann, president of the Jewish National Fund.

2 ILL OF DRINK, PLACE RAIDED

An alleged speakeasy at 877 South Canal street, was raided by North Side Police yesterday when two men became ill after drinking moonshine, according to police.

Stanley Kostkivy, 50, of Carpenter way, was taken to Allegheny General Hospital and pronounced in a serious condition after being found in East Ohio street. On information furnished by Mike Kiminski, 26, of Spring way, who also was treated at the hospital, police raided the place and arrested Josephine Yambrivici, 46, and Nick Rodovic.

Porcupine Killed While Visiting On 2nd Avenue

The holiday of a porcupine was cut short yesterday afternoon after the animal decided that a tree in the rear of the home of William G. Jenkins, of 5262 Second avenue, would be a fine place for an afternoon nap. The animal was discovered aloft, and a neighbor, Russell Johnson, aided in dislodging it with a well-placed shot. The animal, weighing several pounds, toppled to the ground, dead.

THE KING'S FIDDLERS

Old King Cole was a merry old soul,
And a merry old soul was he,
He called for his pipe and he called for his bowl,
And he called for his fiddlers three.

MY, my, what a rumpus when the robot appeared! It seems that the Prime Minister, in a fit of economy, had installed canned music and fired the King's rollicking fiddlers. The jolly old monarch was wroth.

But King Cole could remedy the trouble. He had only to order the robot to the attic, send for his beloved fiddlers, and have the Prime Minister publicly spanked.

Theatre patrons can't get action so swiftly. But they can insist on having their money's worth in the theatre by joining the Music Defense League. Sign and mail the coupon.

SALESMAN DIES IN FALL

Oliver Hostettlar, 22, a shoe salesman, died last night in Homeopathic Hospital of injuries received in a fall from the second floor of a house at 5430 Center avenue, where he was a roomer.

Hostettlar plunged to the sidewalk when a water spout to which he was clinging gave way as he attempted to enter the room of Victor Polansky, according to the coroner's report.

When Polansky told Hostettlar he was unable to get into his room because the door was locked and he did not have the key, Hostettlar offered to enter by a window. He suffered a fractured skull. His home was in Meyersdale, Pa.

Police Force Room, Find Man Stabbed

Dravosburg police late last night broke into the room of Rade Prodanovic, 47, at 506 White street, Dravosburg, and found him on the floor with a knife wound in the right side of his abdomen. He was removed to McKeesport Hospital, where his condition was said to be fair. He refused to tell whether he was attacked or had stabbed himself.

Poles Celebrate New Constitution

Poles of the Pittsburgh district celebrated the tenth anniversary of the adoption of the new Polish constitution and the one hundred and fortieth anniversary of the constitution of 1791 with an entertainment in Moose Temple last night. The celebration was under auspices of the Pittsburgh District Gmina No. 38 and the Polish National Alliance of America.

A Grown-up Store Serves You More Intimately

IT seems like an odd contradiction to say that the more customers A & P has, the more intimately it can serve each one of them. Yet it's a fact.

The original little store from which A & P sprang was stocked with carefully bought food. But after all, it was a small store, and it had to buy what the market offered.

The grown-up A & P of today is stocked with food whose selection takes the full time of hundreds of buyers, scattered across the face of the earth, searching wherever good foods originate for the pick of the crop. So it is that when you express a desire for a certain type of food, a specialist in that food knows where to find it at the peak of quality, for the lowest price.

The A & P store in your neighborhood, backed by an army of expert buyers, carries out your wishes as the little old original store never dreamed of doing.

Things I Never Knew Till Now
(But which you knew all along!)

That at one time you could get a divorce from your wife in this country if her cooking was pediculous. (Ouzeylay to you!)

That Brigham Young was sued for divorce by his 15th frau.

That Amos 'n' Andy once were known as Sam 'n' Henry.

That Spaniards are not lazy. The late Alexander P. Moore wrote about them working longer hours daily than any other people.

That, according to an anonymous subscriber, there is a bed in a ward of the Prospect Heights Hospital, Brooklyn, with a card over it bearing this inscription: "Donated in memory of Walter Winchell, M. D." (It's in the Blessed Event Dept!)

That the King of Siam has 39 autos in his Siam shack.

That in many states, the widow and children are entitled to receive a set portion of a man's estate before creditors are paid.

That cold water is best to erase ink stains from hands.

That there is a "dead spot" a hundred miles in circumference in the South Pacific Ocean in which nothing lives. No oxygen.

That England has faster trains than we have in America. The fastest in America is the International Limited (Montreal to Toronto), averaging 58 miles per hour. Capt. Hawks would be bored on it.

That they still are paying pensions on the War of 1812.

That a broadcast travels farther on short-waves than on long-waves, but can be heard nearer on long-waves than on short ones.

That if you have a horror of cats you have "aelurophobia."

That "Jerusalem artichoke" is not an artichoke and has no connection with Jerusalem. It was first cultivated in Italy.

That the word "acre" originally meant any field of whatever size. As a measure of land it was first defined under Edward I "as the amount a yoke of oxen could plow in a day."

That the address of the Fife Bldg., in S. F., Calif., is 1 Drum St.

That it was a Pennsylvanian who first discovered the uses of boardings and fences as a means of advertising in the early 1700s. He began the racket by painting on the wooden walls of a graveyard: "Use Jones' Bottle Ale if you would keep out of here!"

That the largest library in the world is in Paris. It has 2,600,000 volumes. The Congressional Library is the largest in the U. S.

That the Lord Mayor of London is entitled, outside of the Royal Family, to the first notice of the birth of a Royal heir.

That a Duke, sentenced to hang, has a right to hang 30 feet higher on the gallows than any other individual in the British Empire—by right of heredity. And they hang pictures.

That there are but two men who are entitled to remain with their hats on in the King's presence—as a reward for valor.

That the famous "Knockout" Brown, who fought the champs, is really named Valentine Braun, and is now a beauty parlor owner.

That another thing we'd like to know is why, at Valley Forge, in a museum built to house relics of the American Revolution, should there be exhibited a piano donated by Queen Victoria to Tom Thumb?

That the word "antedisestablishmentarianism" was used by Mr. Gladstone in the House of Commons during a debate, and a member shouted: "You are intoxicated by the exuberance of your own verbosity!" Which still makes the longest word in the dicksh—incomprehensible!!!

That towards the end of the 15th Century Antonio Cornezano wrote 100 different sonnets on one subject! The eyes of his beloved.

That Hume never broke his resolution, formed in early life, of never replying to attacks upon his literary works.

That Goethe's mother left orders that at the time of her funeral there should not be too few raisins in the cake for the feast.

That Edward Everett was so punctilious in point of manners that he always retired to his chamber to blow his Durante.

And that a new subscriber signed E. A. observes that there is no questioning the fact that Broadway has a lot of "square-shooters." Sure! They' shoot you square in the back.

Studio to Put Notre Dame And Football Into Feature Film

By HARRISON CARROLL

(Copyright, 1931, by Premier Syndicate)

HOLLYWOOD, May 4.

Carl Laemmle, Jr., tells me he will dedicate the film to Knute Rockne, beloved coach of the "Fighting Irish," who fell to his death in a disabled airplane.

All the available Rockne stars are to appear in the picture, including the famous "Four Horsemen." The picture will be made partly in South Bend and partly in Hollywood. It is not to be confused with the series of short subjects that Universal is filming with the Irish squad.

Lewis Ayres

Naturally, the leading parts will be taken by professional actors, all of whom are yet to be chosen. Lew Ayres would be a natural selection for the lead.

Production gets under way some time in the summer.

HE'S IRISH TOO

At West Coast breakfast clubs, if you don't know the name of your neighbor, it is customary to address him: "Hello, Ham."

NO TIME LOST

Several days ago I printed that Mary Brian's option was not being taken up by Paramount. My prediction of a scramble of other studios for her services already is borne out.

Universal is negotiating to buy up the rest of her contract, with the idea of giving her the feminine lead in "Strictly Dishonorable." If they are successful, she is practically set for the part.

The Preston Sturgess comedy would have reached the screen long ago but for protective clauses which Brock Pemberton had put into the sale contract to Universal. Now that the road companies of the play have skimmed the cream of the cities, the film can be started. John Boles will have the Tullio Carminatti stage role.

LATEST GOSSIP

Walter Huston's son, John, has been signed by Universal to adapt "Saint Johnson" for his father's use. After an absence of some time from the screen, Merna Kennedy will make a talkie called "Devils on Deck" for Bryan Foy. The red-headed actress still goes with James Hall. Three local university girls are working at Paramount in "The Confessions of a Co-ed." None of them is ambitious for an acting career . . . One of Carl Laemmle, Jr.'s birthday greetings was a wreath of everlasting flowers, sent by Erich von Stroheim . . . Katherine DeMille was script girl for her father, C. B., on "The Squaw Man" . . . Hollywood's latest racket belongs to a young man who buys up old film and converts it into imitation patent leather. So, any day now, you may find yourself stepping right in the middle of Jack Oakie's face.

ONE-NIGHT STANDS FOR POLLOCK DRAMA

Crosby Gaige comes forward with a new scheme to revive interest in the theater in the one-night stands. As announced previously, he intends "road-showing" his present production of Channing Pollock's play, "The House Beautiful."

In the fall he will organize four companies—one for Boston, Philadelphia, Chicago and key cities as far west as Kansas City; another to cover the West Coast and a third for a proposed season through the Southern States, playing the Florida resorts in January, February and March; and the fourth to consist of a very modified production in very compact form that will fit the small rostrums of the little theaters and auditoriums of the various colleges.

This company will also play a tour of selected one-night stands in the Middle West following an itinerary originally played by "The Fool."

'DIRIGIBLE' OPENS TONIGHT IN PITT

Announcement has just been made that the opening of Columbia's film of the air, "Dirigible," in the Pitt tonight, will be done in regular "Hollywood" fashion, with a battery of Kleig lights, microphones, etc.

Preceding the opening, there will be a naval parade with music, in which the Navy Reserve will march from the B. and O. station, over downtown streets. The premiere will be broadcast over Station KQV.

"Dirigible," which comes for a limited engagement, with matinees daily, beginning Tuesday afternoon, features Jack Holt, Fay Wray and Ralph Graves, and was directed by Frank Capra, with the assistance and co-operation of the United States Navy, Bureau of Aeronautics.

Chaplin Picture Feature in Harris

Charlie Chaplin's film, "City Lights," is now being seen in the Harris. It is Mr. Chaplin's latest picture and it is without dialogue. Virginia Cherrill has the leading feminine role.

Plays, Players and By-Play

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

Dear old Sixth strasse becomes the center of flesh-and-blood dramatic endeavor today, when the George Sharp Players take possession of the Alvin. "The Play's The Thing" will be seen for six nights and a cupla matinees. And—hang onto your hearts, gals—Hugh Banks will be back! The new feminine lead, Gladys George, will be further reason for gladness, if she shines as she did last week in "Strange Interlude." Nightlight-saving shows will be Thursday and Saturday afternoons.

Extravagant talk is as cheap as any except when you pay to hear it from a comedian.

George Arliss, who now is in "The Millionaire" class, continues to scatter his wealth of artistry on the Warner screen, where he begins his second week today. Davey Manners and Evelyn Knapp personize the rich romance. Check!

Midweek, which often is called Wednesday, Molly Picon, Yiddish comedienne, will be in the Nixon for one night only. She will appear in an operetta, "The Love Thief." Traffic in seats at the box office will be confined to Wednesday.

If we believe the stage comic, the husband is the figurehead of the family and the figure is a naught.

MANY PLAYERS GET NEW FILM CONTRACTS

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer has announced signing of new long-term contracts with Joan Crawford, Polly Moran, Becky Gardiner, writer, and the directors, George Hill and Marcel de Sano. Miss Crawford has recently finished "Complete Surrender," an adaptation of Kenyon Nicholson's "Torch Song," and is now busy working in "Girls Together."

Polly Moran will soon start in "Politics," with Marie Dressler, and Miss Gardiner is busy with an original screen script. Mr. Hill did the two recent Wallace Beery pictures, "The Secret Six" and "Sea Eagles," and Mr. de Sano made "Blarney" and "Peacock Alley."

WOOD'S EARLY FORM DISAPPOINTING

THE LOSS OF Ervin Brame's pitching services would not have hit the Pirates so hard, and the local club probably would be in a better position in the National League standing than it occupies today if Charley Wood had come even close to living up to expectations. So far, the young Corsair left-hander has been one of the keenest disappointments of the spring among the major league pitchers.

Charley Wood

The defeat suffered by Wood in Cincinnati yesterday, which interrupted the Bucs' winning streak at four straight and prevented them from making a clean sweep of the five-game string with the Reds, was his third in three starts against three different clubs. He lost to the Cubs on April 17 and to the Cardinals on April 28. In all three of his assignments he has failed to go the distance. Against the Bruins he was lifted after six innings, against the Redbirds he lasted only five frames, and yesterday against the Reds he had to be derricked in the second round.

THOSE THREE STARTS stand out in disappointing contrast to Wood's first three performances last fall, when he won two of his first three games by the shut-out route. Of course, there is every reason to feel hopeful that the youthful southpaw will eventually display again the ability he showed in 1930, but his offishness at a time when the staff is crippled is proving costly. He ought to be left out until he gets the control that he should have acquired on the training trip.

The Pirates have won six of their last nine games, and two of the three defeats are charged to Wood. They hit well enough in the second tilt yesterday to have made it seven out of nine with average pitching. It doesn't require wonderful ball to beat the helpless Howleys. The latter look like the weakest club the National League has known in a long time. Of their first 14 games the Reds have won only two, both at the expense of Pittsburgh.

THE GOING WON'T be so soft for the Bucs when they resume their championship schedule after playing exhibition games today and tomorrow, as the Cardinals will be here on Wednesday to open a series of four contests and that spells lots of trouble.

Gabby Street's champions have been playing the most consistent ball in either major league in winning 11 of their first 14 games. They have taken five out of six from the strong Cubs, and by winning their last five games have equaled the season's record for consecutive wins, held by the White Sox.

WESLEY FERRELL, Cleveland star, became the first major league flinger to win five games this year when he downed the Tigers yesterday. He is charged with one defeat. No other pitcher in the big show has won more than three games up to today. Baseball men are beginning to predict that Ferrell will develop into a second Christy Mathewson. Certainly he bids fair to outshine most hurlers of the present day. Like many other great stars, Ferrell was dirt cheap. A Cleveland scout found him while he was pitching for a semi-pro club in East Douglas, Mass., and signed him to a contract. The youngster was then farmed to the Terre Haute club of the Three-I League for a season's experience before being taken on by the Indians.

Jimmy Hagan

ONE OF THE oldest sports fixtures in Pittsburgh will be run off next Saturday when Pitt's twenty-fourth annual interscholastic track and field meet is held at the Stadium. For many years this meet was staged at Schenley Oval, but after the completion of the Stadium it was transferred to that big bowl in 1926.

Some of the greatest track and field stars in local scholastic history have competed in this meet during the last 23 years. The times and distances compare favorably with the best scholastic marks on record. This year's meet, under the direction of Jimmy Hagan, is expected to be the largest in the entire list, as the entry list has far exceeded anticipations.

ONE PITCHER WHO attributes his improved form this year to the new ball is Eddie Brandt, of the Braves. The Boston southpaw says he can get more stuff on both his curve and his fast one than he ever could before, and finds that his control has not been affected.

Rabbit Maranville reports that the changed pellet is making grounders do funny tricks. He says he has seen more snaky, crooked grounders than he can recall having seen in any previous spring, and thinks the raised stitches have caused many freakish skids, hops and side slips.

"They're keeping the balls in play longer than for many years," Maranville adds. "Last year it was nothing to use two or even three dozen in a game, but this season we've never gone above one dozen. It seems to last well enough, this new ball, and the umpires are keeping it in play longer and not tossing it out for any trifling reason. We've won several games this spring because we refused to hit at the first pitches. A club that blazes away at that first pitched ball never bothers a pitcher much and rarely gets any where. I'd certainly like to see Frank Schulte playing the game now. I think he'd hit more home runs than Babe Ruth."

DON M'DONALD, veteran wrestling referee, says that of all the rough mat struggles he has seen the one that lingers most vividly in his memory was the historic clash of January 8, 1926, at Convention Hall in Kansas City, Mo., when Strangler Lewis lost his championship to the late Wayne Munn.

"I can never forget Munn," says McDonld. "Lewis was a mere toy in his gorilla-like arms. Munn's brute strength was almost incredible. They fought like mad men. Finally, in a frenzy of strength, Munn whirled Lewis over his head like a sack of onions and heaved him completely out of the ring to the fourth or fifth row of seats."

THE NAMING OF Alec Fox as one of the football line coaches at the University of Pennsylvania means that no fewer than five members of the great Pitt line of 1928 will be serving as mentors at big schools throughout the country next fall.

Joe Donchess

It will be recalled that the 1928 Panther team was one of the best defensive elevens in Pitt history. Only 16 points were scored against it, seven of these coming as the result of an intercepted pass by West Virginia, two through a safety in the same game, and the remainder through one earned touchdown by Carnegie Tech.

OF THE OTHER line players on that team, Joe Donchess, end, and Ray Montgomery, then center, are assistant coaches at Pitt; Mike Getto, tackle, is line coach at Kansas, serving his third year there, and Luby DiMeolo, guard, is assistant to Chick Meehan at New York U. Honey Guarino, end, coached for one year, when he was freshman mentor at John Carroll. Charley Edwards, Tom Parkinson and Toby Uansa, backs, will be graduated this year, all three having taken the five-year dental course. Charley Tully, tackle, and Josh Williams, halfback, the sophomores on the 1928 team, also will be graduated in June, and of these, Williams, at least, intends to take up coaching.

All ready to play ball! That is the status of the local sandlot teams, and, should the weatherman warm up things a little today, banner crowds will be on hand to watch the league openers in various parts of the city.

At Swissvale and Olympia Park will be large crowds watching the big shots in action. At Swissvale, the Community nine under the leadership of Manager Ed Walsh, will pry off the lid with the Turtle Creek Community Builders under Manager Winters.

Many leading lights in the community will be on hand, and the presence of Honus Wagner will be an added attraction.

It has been many years since Wagner helped in the Steel community at an opening game, and Manager Walsh is looking for one of the most successful openings ever staged in the community center.

Burkey probably will get the opening assignment at Swissvale for the home club.

SHOEMEN MEET THOMAS

At Olympia Park the fans will have an opportunity to watch Book Shoe, classed as the favorite to cop the City League pennant, open against the J. L. Thomas Club, of Bloomfield. It is hard to say how the teams will line up. The starting pitchers are also a mystery.

There is every reason to feel that Book Shoe will flash many new faces from the aggregation that lost in the playoffs last season to Homewood.

The opening game of the Commercial and Industrial loop will be flashed at Library. Manager Munson requested that the Coal company team open this evening, but this will be the only game scheduled this week, President Dick Mackey having postponed other games one week because of the cold snap.

Manager Munson, however, wanted to get going, since many of the company officials are in town this week and naturally he wanted them to see his snappy aggregation in action.

HORNES STRONG

Sam Craig and his Penn avenue boys, however, will give the Library fans something to get enthused over. Hornes had a good club last season, and rumor states that the entry is far stronger this season.

Many other leagues will open tomorrow evening. The Monessen City League gets started, and the EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF SATURDAY: THE BLUE SUN—There is an authentic record of the occurence of a blue sun. The phenomenon took place on the island of Java on August 28, 1883, as a result of the most extraordinary volcanic explosion of modern times. The explosion, which all but destroyed the island of Krakatoa in the straits of Sunda, between Java and Sumatra, caused huge clouds of smoke and dust to completely hide the sun. When the heavenly orb finally became visible it was the color of the deep blue sea, and it remained a deep blue until the coming of the night. This instance, unheard of either before or after, is incomparably more unusual than even the proverbial "blue moon." AN INDIAN MOTHER CALLS HER CHILD BABY—An Indian mother calls her infant child "my baby," not "my papoose." The mother uses the English word "baby" or a native Indian word meaning the same thing. There are about 100 different words in the various Indian languages of the North American Indians which mean "baby." (Reference: John Kilham, Syracuse, N. Y., noted author and lecturer on the North American Indian, who has been given the Indian name of "Ko-la Wash-ta" (good friend).

PIRATE HOPES BRIGHTEN

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

Pirate prospects were looking up today on top of a series of optimistic developments reflected in the morale of the club. The Freebooters have won four of their last five games, and, even though all of these battles have been waged against the lowly Reds, the result is pleasing to the team and its supporters.

The Buccos and Rhinelanders are all washed up for a spell following their dual engagement of yesterday in Cincinnati, which was divided. The Pirates copped the first game, 6 to 3, and then tasted defeat in the second as the Howleymen won their first victory in eight games. The score of this contest was 10 to 2.

The main body of the Pittsburgh team is spending the day in Huntington, W. Va., where an exhibition game is to be staged. The big leaguers will repeat the exhibition program tomorrow at Charleston, W. Va.

HURLERS TO REST

Most of the first-string pitchers and a few others came back to the city today, they being excused from the barnstorming trip. The regular sharpshooters will make use of the spare time in getting ready for the invasion of the pace-setting Cardinals, who will make their season's bow in the Oakland Orchard Wednesday. Four battles with the Redbirds are on the Pittsburgh card.

When the Oaklanders finish up with the classy Cardinals, Forbes Field will take on silence over a long period. At the close of the Saturday fight, the Pirates will move on to Brooklyn where on Sunday they will start their first eastern invasion.

Incidentally, the Cardinals will come here minus the services of Dizzy Dean, the highly exploited young pitcher, who has been sent back to the Houston Club, of the

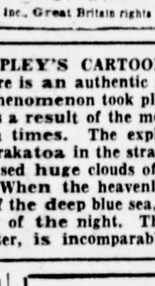
Sport Vignettes

Congressman Clyde Kelly, at the recent banquet for the state champion Scott High School basketball team, told a pip of a story on Al Schacht, the baseball comedian . . . According to Kelly, Clark Griffith paid the Buffalo club $300 for Schacht's release to have him team up with Nick Altrock, his other funny man, with the understanding that Schacht would reimburse the club for rescuing him from the minors . . . Throughout the season (it was in 1924), Schacht always pleaded poverty when the subject was brought up and promised to pay at a later date. . . . Finally came the day when the Senators defeated the Giants, 4-3, in the twelfth inning to win the world series, with the beloved Walter Johnson going to the mound in the ninth inning to play the hero role. . . . Everyone was in tears over the dramatic finish and the triumph of Johnson, and the clever Schacht chose this moment to put his arms around Griff's shoulders in the clubhouse and chirp, "Say, Clark, you ain't goin' to make me pay you those 300 berries, are you—huh?"



Clyde Kelly

Kelly, the "wow" speaker of the evening, pulled a few other good ones. . . . For one thing, he paid a fine tribute to sports when he said they were on a higher plane, ethically, than business and politics, because they represented the spirit of fair play at its best . . . "College professors once were asked to name the finest word in the English language," he said, "and the word 'loyalty' topped the list. . . . I think sportsmanship is a finer word. . . . Loyalty may be to a bad cause or to a bad leader, but sportsmanship is the epitome of fair play and bespeaks a square deal."

Telling the honor guests that, while they were on the top of the world at the moment, they could not hope to get by forever on their basketball laurels, but must look ahead to sterner things in life, the Congressman illustrated his point with the story about the athlete who was a big shot in college and upon graduation thought he was the center of the universe and that when he walked down one side of the street he tipped the world in that direction. . . . This young fellow got himself a job as a salesman for a hard-boiled employer, who instructed him in his duties and sent him out on the road with the injunction to wire back anything important. . . . At the end of the first day, the chappie wired: "Have just arrived and have a nice room and bath in the hotel. Feeling fine." . . . The big boss spluttered and shot back: "So glad! Love and kisses—you're fired!"

Dr. H. C. Carlson, the successful Pitt basketball coach, who was toastmaster at the affair, told of a compliment paid the sturdy young athletes of Western Pennsylvania by Pop Warner, former Pitt football coach, under whom Carlson played an end position . . . Telling of the fine qualities of the lads from this sector, Warner, according to Carlson, said, "They have a lot of steel in them."

A problem in higher ring science is due to be solved at a lecture between two veteran professors in the 10-round main bout in the Motor Square Garden ring tonight.

Eddie Shea

Shea is best known for his hard punching and Smith for his ability to absorb punishment and keep going.

SHEA'S LOCAL DEBUT

This will be Shea's first appearance in these parts. Smith has boxed Benny Bass, the junior-lightweight champion, at the Meyers Bowl, North Braddock, and recently beaten Johnny Datto, the Filipino thumper, in the Garden ring. Between them, they have met all of the good bantamweights, featherweights and junior-lightweights in the land. It is their second meeting, Shea having eked out a 10-round decision over the durable Bohemian in Detroit a year ago.

The things to watch out for tonight are what will happen when Shea explodes his heavy left hook against Smith's jaw and either makes a lasting impression or doesn't. If he is unable to hurt Smith, Steve will be in there doing some not-so-hard but plentiful punching himself, as in the case of his bout with Datto, when he stole the show away from the Clevelander, to the flabbergasted surprise of all present.

GIZZY IN SEMI-FINAL

Battling Gizzy, Donora's contribution to the club fighter brigade, makes his return to the ring after an absence of several months, against one Windy Meyers, of Cincinnati, in the eight-round semi-final, and Benny Goldstein, highly-touted featherweight, of Baltimore, stages his local debut against Angelo Vergione, of Swissvale, in the six-

VANCE PITCHES ROBINS TO VICTORY

Associated Press.

The Yankees hailed Babe Ruth's return to the lineup yesterday with an 8-to-3 triumph over the Boston Red Sox. Ruth played six innings and hit a pair of singles, getting around nicely on his injured leg.

A big sixth inning, in which they scored seven runs and drove Thomas from the hill, enabled the St. Louis Browns to down Chicago, 9 to 5, and break a nine-game losing streak.

Wes Ferrell, the no-hit, no-run hero of a few days back, had a stormy first inning against Detroit, but stuck it out to register his fifth win, 7 to 4.

Al Simmons went on one of his well known hitting sprees to give the Athletics a 3-to-1 victory over Washington in their opener. His triple drove a run across in the first inning and he added a homer for good measure in the ninth.

ROBINS BEAT GIANTS

When the Brooklyn Robins lose a ball game by ragged base running, that's not news. But when they snatch one out of the fire by spirited work on the paths, it is something to chronicle.

They beat the Giants yesterday, 4 to 3, with as pretty piece of base running as you would want to see.

Fresco Thompson, a recent importation from Philadelphia, was perched on second base in the seventh inning, when Lefty O'Doul smacked a roller to Bill Terry at first. Thompson lit out and, seeing Terry fumble momentarily, didn't even slow up rounding third. He beat a perfect throw to the plate by an eyelash.

The defeat was costly to the Giants, who lost ground in their fight for the National League top as St. Louis made it three straight over Chicago, 5 to 4. The Cardinals went a game and a half ahead when Charlie Gelbert's squeeze bunt scored the winning run in the eleventh inning.

BRAVES MISS CHANCE

The Boston Braves missed an opportunity to move into third place when they dropped their fourth straight to the Phillies, 4 to 1.

Cincinnati finally registered victory No. 2, defeating Pittsburgh, 10 to 5, in the second game of a doubleheader, after the Pirates had won the first, 6 to 3.

YANKS CLINCH CUP DUEL

MEXICO CITY, May 4.—(AP.)—The youthful United States Davis Cup doubles team of Frank X. Shields, of New York, and Sidney B. Wood, of the University of Arizona, carried the American team into the second round of the Davis Cup play yesterday by defeating the Mexican combination of Ricardo Tapia and Manuel Llano in the deciding match of the tie. The scores were 6-3, 6-3, 6-4.

The victory was the third straight for the United States. Previously Shields and Wilmer Allison, of Austin, Tex., had won the opening singles matches. By defeating Mexico, the United States qualified to meet Canada in the North American zone final at Montreal May 21, 22 and 23.

SPAIN DEFEATED

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia, May 4.—(AP.)—Czechoslovakia advanced to the second round of the European zone Davis Cup play yesterday by winning both of the last day's two singles matches from Spain for a 4-to-1 victory in the round. L. Hecht clinched the victory for Czechoslovakia by defeating F. H. G. Maier, of Spain, in four sets. The scores were 4-6, 6-3, 6-4, 6-4. R. Menzel captured the final match from Manuel Alonzo, of Spain, 6-8, 6-2, 6-1, 6-3.

ITALIANS WIN

BUDAPEST, Hungary, May 4.—(AP.)—Italy defeated Hungary four matches to one in their first round Davis Cup tie by winning two singles matches yesterday to advance to the second round. Baron H. L. De Morpurgo, Italian ace, defeated I. Tacaco in three straight sets to make the victory certain and George De Stefani took a close five-set match from Bela Con Kehrling.

ROW ADMITTED BY LE BOURVEAU

KANSAS CITY, May 4.—(AP.)—DeWitt (Bevo) Lebourveau, Toledo American Association outfielder, for whom a warrant charging assault and battery was issued in Milwaukee yesterday, said he struck Harold Oehler, signer of the warrant, but that his act was justified.

Lebourveau said he resented remarks made by Oehler at a party Friday night at the home of Ben Martin and slapped Oehler. The outfielder also said he kissed Mrs. Oehler but did it with her husband's consent and in the presence of other guests. Lebourveau said he had known the Oehlers several years.

The Toledo player, here with his team for a series with Kansas City, said he was at the Milwaukee ball park yesterday when the Mudhens closed a series with the Brewers, but was instructed not to don a uniform.

Dutra Pair Again Beats Jones, Diegel

SAN FRANCISCO, May 4.—(AP.)—Olin Dutra, of Los Angeles, and his brother, Mortie Dutra, of Long Beach, defeated Bobby Jones, Atlanta, and Leo Diegel, Agua Caliente, 3 and 2, in an 18-hole benefit exhibition match yesterday.

Six thousand persons saw the match, which was played as a benefit for the Shriners Crippled Childrens' Hospital at San Francisco and Atlanta.

Bobby had consistent difficulty with his putting and failed several times to get putts of eight to 15 feet from the cup, which usually are easy for the former champion. The cards:

HEAVY LINKS CARD SLATED TODAY

By VERN SWARTSFAGER

The inaugural match of the Hotel, Club and Restaurant Men's Golf Association, scheduled for this afternoon at the Highland Country Club, the links of which are in perfect condition at this time, two Interscholastic Golf Conference matches and a tourney of the Dental Golf Association, at South Hills, are on the golf books today.

Walter H. Mennigke, well-known Chartiers Heights official, who is president, and, incidentally, organizer of the group more than five years ago, predicts an even more successful season this year than any which have gone by the boards. Charley Schmidt, of South Hills, the secretary, will be on the job to see that all get started in good shape, while Frank (Sunny) Brocket again will pose as official scorer.

Kiski Prep will travel from Saltsburg to play Langley High this afternoon in a Section I school conference tilt at the Thornburg Country Club, while Carrick High meets Bellevue High in a Section II contest at the Shannopin Country Club.

SCHEDULE SET

The events committee of the Greensburg Country Club has named its schedule for May, and likewise has made due pre-season announcements. A big program is planned for Perry Delvicchio Day, June 15, when a pro-amateur tourney is to be held; it is an annual event and proved a delightful occasion last year. The committees named for this season include:

Green committee—James E. Watson, chairman; E. B. Moore, R. W. Smith, C. F. Mills.

Events committee—James F. Giffen, Jr., chairman; John Barclay, Jr., J. Regis Walthour, A. K. Wood, Paul Euwer, W. G. Griffith.

The schedule for this month follows:

May 7, medal play, ⅝ handicap, opening dinner, dinner match (Gen. Richard Coulter and J. E. Watson, captains); May 9, match play against par, ⅝ handicap; May 14, match play against par, full handicap, dinner match (James F. Giffen, Jr. and W. G. Griffith, captains); May 16, four-ball best ball of partners, medal, ⅝ handicap; May 21, match play against par, ⅝ handicap, dinner match (J. Regis Walthour and A. K. Wood, captains); May 23, medal play, full handicap; May 28, match play against par, ⅝ handicap, dinner match (John Barclay, Jr. and Paul Euwer, captains); May 30, Memorial Day trophy tourney, medal play, full handicap, morning and afternoon.

JUNIOR AT ALCOMA

The dates and location for the annual West Penn junior golf championship tournament have been set by George A. Ormiston, secretary of the W. P. G. A. The tourney will be played over the Alcoma Country Club links July 22, 23 and 24.

Jim Ramsay, club champ, and Vince Eldred, pro, bowed before Sam Parks, Jr., Pitt captain, and J. G. (Jim) Wyman, 3 and 2, in their exhibition match at Highland yesterday. At Oakmont, George Ormiston and Dr. George T. Gregg played an all-even match with R. W. Smith, of Greensburg, and Les Miles.

Mrs. Louise McDonald has announced that the opening women's event at the Longue Vue Club will be held on Thursday, following a luncheon in the clubhouse at noon. It will be a medal play, under handicap affair.

round second bout. Two old bantamweight rivals, Johnny Haggerty, of Lawrenceville, and Sammy Paris, of the Hill, are in the six-round opener, carded for 8:30, daylight saving time.

New Castle also has a boxing program on the boards for tonight, when Henry Firpo, of Louisville, and Sam Bruce, Negro middleweight, of Buffalo, box the 10-round windup in the Castle Bowl, with Jimmy Thomas, promising young local Negro bantamweight, mingling with Pete Mazzeo, of Cleveland, in the semi-final. Frankie Porto, of Glassport, meets Cowboy Martin in the semi-final to a bout between Freddie Edwards and Cuddy Dixon at Zanesville, O.

Between Rounds

Ross Fields, southpaw flyweight, of Weirton, W. Va., defeated Frankie Murray, of California, in the eight-round main bout of the first open-air show at the Weirton High School field Saturday night. Other results: Marshall Couette won by technical knockout over Harry Morris, Johnny Demko defeated Sammy Madison, Jimmy Gilligan defeated Frankie Fusko, Kid Weir and Al Hart drew and Jimmy Anderson defeated Nick Ballerino. Johnny Kilbane, former featherweight champion, refereed.

Emmett Rocco, Ellwood City heavyweight, is receiving a sizable guarantee for his return bout with King Levinsky in the Chicago Stadium next Friday night, following his victory over the Kingfish at Motor Square Garden here last Monday night, his first battle under the new management of Joe Alexander, of New Castle.

In addition to the heavyweight windup between Eddie Sago and Sparky Ewalt, the following bouts have been arranged for the amateur boxing show under the auspices of the Pastorious A. C. in Lithuanian Hall, McKees Rocks, tomorrow night: Frank Kladdick vs. Billy Wilmo, Andy Kosel vs. Young Lawstedder and Young Face vs. Kid Lefty.

The advance sale of tickets indicates a capacity crowd at the benefit boxing show for the relief of the needy of the Fifth Ward, to be held in the Moose Temple, tomorrow night. It is a professional bill, with Eddie Brannon, Hill Negro lightweight, meeting Hal Murray, of Harrisburg, in the eight-round main bout. Jimmy Moore boxes Carl Montebano, Allen Beatty meets Johnny Brown and Don Frazier engages Al Farone in six-rounders and Sammy Burns takes on Johnny Haggerty in the four-round opener.

Champion Max Schmeling will box two sparring partners a total of four rounds as an added feature of the Young Jack Thompson-Bucky Lawless show in the Chicago Stadium Friday night.

The New Castle boxing show tonight will not get under way until 9:15 daylight saving time, to permit all of the fans to be on hand for the opening bout.

The improvement shown by Ervin Brame and Steve Swetonic in the past few days has been gratifying to Messers. Dreyfuss and Ens. Brame is not yet ready to start a game, but he should be able to pitch in a week. Meantime, he is available for pinch-hitting duty as he eloquently proved Saturday when he injected an emergency double into a game wherein the Buccos were sagging.

SUHR'S HURTS SLIGHT

Gus Suhr is the latest member of the hospital squad, but the spike wounds sustained by the firstsacker in Saturday's fracas are of a rather slight nature. It is likely he will be able to go to his post Wednesday. If he does George Grantham will swing back to second, and Bill Regan, who has been giving fine utility service, will go to the bench.

Remy Kremer pitched the Pirates to a victory over the Reds in the first clash at Cincinnati yesterday. The clever Red Lucas was just as stingy with his hits as was the Frenchman, but Red's supporting cast cracked in the sixth round when the Buccos piled up five tallies, or enough to clinch the ball game. Kremer yielded eight hits and the Pirates could get but seven off Lucas. Misplays made by Roush and Ford in the inning helped to sink the Reds, Adam Comorosky contributing to the downfall with a two-out double that scored a couple of Rovers.

WOOD'S CONTROL OFF

Charley Wood, Wichita star, who was a late sensation last season, foozled another chance to stand out as he went to the mound in the second game. The drop-ball lefthander was "in and out" in the second inning, but his strikeout pitching could not make amends for his lack of control. Charley's mates tried to give him a nice present as they scored three times in the second but the home team came in and hopped on the lad. They were still picking on him when George Grant went to the rescue. The Rhinelanders scored five runs and they pecked away effectively at the relief pitchers as the game wore on. Glenn Spencer and Andy Bednar followed Grant to the slab.

Ray Kolp turned in the second Red triumph of the season. Kolp was mistreated in the second and he saw two more mates skip over the home dish in the fourth, but he handed out nothing but goose eggs in the other seven frames.

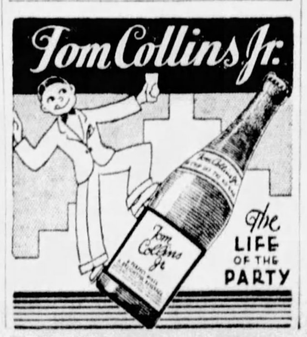
Joe Stripp went on a batting rampage in the nightcap. The hustling Red rapped out four hits. Lloyd Waner and Grantham each came out of the double-header with four safeties.

Umpires Named By M.-A. Prexy

EBENSBURG, Pa., May 4.—(AP.)—President Elmer Daly, of the Middle-Atlantic Baseball League, has announced the selection of six umpires for the present season. They will be used, he said, in addition to the local umpires whom each city of the league will have.

They are D. J. O'Keefe, Addison, N. Y.; Pat Fohl, Terre Haute, Ind.; Bill Clark, Philadelphia; D. J. O'Brien, Cleveland; Mike Jacobs, Louisville, Ky., and George James, Youngstown, O.

President Daly said a conference of these men would be held in Johnstown tomorrow.



TECH, W. & J. NET TEAMS CLASH HERE

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

Formal inauguration of sports relations between the University of Pittsburgh and Duquesne University stands forth as leading item on a crowded card of local net activity for the current week. The Panther followers of Dr. Billy McElroy are slated to invade the Bluff bailiwick for battle with Grant Siverd's Dukes on Friday afternoon, the affair completing start of a new era of tri-cornered local intercollegiate competion.

By way of starting the week off, Carnegie and Wash-Jeff clash on the Tartan courts this afternoon. The Plaid faces an extremely busy week.

DUKES PLAY TECH

Meanwhile, two days prior to the Pitt-Duke debate, the Siverd host will trek Schenley Parkward in quest of vengeance over the Plaid array. On the strength of past performance, the Bluffites do not loom as prime favorites to accomplish such purpose, but that it is by no means beyond the realm of possibility is indicated by the fact that each of the tilts dropped to Carnegie in the course of the recent Tartan jaunt to the Hill were by exceedingly close margins.

Pitt, fresh from brilliant wins over George Washington University and Georgetown, looms as the racquet class of the district. The triumph of Capt. Eddie Jacobs, of the Blue and Gold, over Gregory Mangin, Hoya flash and sixth ranking player in the United States, was most impressive.

PITT VS. PLAID, MAY 11

The driving Skibo proteges of Coach B. P. Hoover will not tackle Panther opposition until May 11, a week from today, on which date the Plaid will cross Oakland in automobiles and racquets in the Pitt arena. Before this engagement, though, the Scotch must entertain W. & J. this afternoon, Duquesne on Wednesday and Geneva on Saturday. The Dukes likewise rate a Saturday tussle, the scene of hostilities being Waynesburg and the enemy being the Yellow Jackets thereof. According to announcement from Bluff sport headquarters, the Hillmen's two frays with Allegheny College, billed respectively for Meadville on May 19 and for Pittsburgh two days later, have been canceled by the upstaters, due to lack of playing facilities on the Methodist campus.

Varsity affairs fail to monopolize Steel City net attention these days. Chairman Jack Lauler of the Pittsburgh Tennis Association Inter-Club League New Teams Committee has reported definitely to P. T. A. headquarters that squads from the Rockwood Tennis Club of Mount Lebanon and the Bellevue Tennis Club will be included on the Section II circuit.

SMOKER CARDED

The annual tennis night smoker of the P. T. A. is on the card for a week from tomorrow night at the P. A. A. Chairman J. Howard Moore announces that an excellent program of entertainment has been arranged to supplement the usual array of tasty foodstuffs and invites all net devotees, players and non-players, to be on hand.

An outstanding feature of the festivities will be presentation of the new "Davis Keg," by its donor, P. T. A. President J. Phillips Davis, to the racquet association. The trophy will be henceforth symbolic of Section I titular supremacy in the Inter-Club League.

W.P.I.A.L., Grade School Nines Play

Three W. P. I. A. L. baseball contests are slated for this afternoon, with 11 grade school tussles also scheduled.

In the W. P. I. A. L., in Section II, Finley takes on Mt. Pleasant. In Section IV, Scott and Wilkinsburg mix, and in Section V, McKeesport and Turtle Creek are to clash.

If you want to be satisfied

Says Nick Altrock
(Baseball's Comedian)

WASHINGTON, May 4.—The baseball season has started to settle down, but it doesn't look natural not to have a Boston team on the bottom of at least one league. It would not take much strategy for the Red Sox to blast the Browns out of the bargain basement, but the Cincinnatis are buried so far in the National League cellar they are feeding them through iron tubes. It looks as if the Reds had taken a six-months' lease on all premises below the street level. The double-header season is also here, which should enable the Cincinnatis to increase production and drop games twice as fast.

SLAVIA WINS OVER DUNLEVY

Ralph Caraffi, former Dunlevy boy and now a resident of Cleveland, returned to his home town yesterday afternoon as a member of the star Slavia team, and scored two goals, one in each half, to enable the Cleveland eleven to defeat Dunlevy by a 2-0 score at Husher Field, Monessen.

Caraffi and his brother George were always dangerous. The former Dunlevy boy, while lucky in his first shot, found the net with a brilliant effort for the second attempt.

Cleveland scored in the first period when facing the sun. Dolphi lost the ball and it dropped over his head into the net.

Summers	G	Dolphi
Kenny	R.B	Villani
Norris	L.B	Grubic
Jackson	R.H	Paoterlini

Winesky	I.R	Zinger

W. PA. GOLFER IN BRITISH AMATEUR

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland, May 4.—(AP.)—Fourteen Americans are among the 171 entries announced today for the British Amateur golf championship, beginning at Westward Ho May 18, but only one of them is given much chance by the experts of retaining for America the title Bobby Jones won last year.

The outstanding American entry is George Voight, New York golfing master who, when he is good, is very, very good and entirely capable of walking off with the honor.

Other American club wielders include Frank Sweeney, of Los Angeles, entered from the Addington Club; L. R. Phillips, La Cumbre, Cal.; Ross Thompson, Uniontown, Pa.; Tom Maguire, Stockdale, Cal.; Paul Azbill, an American resident of London; Douglas Grant, former Californian; E. J. Hadden, Oakland, Cal.; J. H. Forsman, New York Athletic Club; Harry Scheftel, American member of the Oxford University team; R. B. Foster, an American businessman living in London, and Charles Lewis, entered from Lakeside, as is Fairbanks.

The American delegation is bound to be cut down after the first round, as Forsman meets Scheftel, Foster and Lewis meet and Hadden and Crane are paired.

THOMPSON FINE PLAYER

Ross Thompson, Uniontown entrant in the British amateur golf tournament, is a member of the Nemacolin Country Club. He never before has engaged in international competition, and although a fine linksman, he never has been able to win a local major event.

Sports Vignettes

Navy for next fall when he signed with Washington and Lee after being replaced at Duke University by Wallace Wade, the Alabama mentor, developed a great play last fall and it will be copied by many elevens next season. . . . The quarterback stands with his back to the center and the two wing backs face each other. . . . When the ball is snapped the latter two cross in front of the quarterback, and, with the fullback also figuring in the play and its many ramifications, it's more luck than good playing if the opposition can find and stop the man with the ball . . . Fred Turbyville, until recently Pitt's athletic promotion chief, has leased a large home with a lot of acreage around it on the Severn River, near Annapolis, where he intends to settle down permanently and conduct a large sports syndicate. . . . He's one of the best sports men in the country, with an unlimited imagination for cooking up stunts and putting them over.

Howard Harpster, Geneva College football coach and a few years ago all-America quarterback at Carnegie Tech, and a pain in the neck to Notre Dame elevens that he faced, has been transferred to Pittsburgh from Akron by the concern for which he works throughout the year and will be a familiar figure here again . . . . . Collyer's Eye, a national sports publication, rates Buck McTiernan, local star, as the eighth best middleweight in the world, with only Dave Shade, Harry Smith, Frankie O'Brien, Vince Dundee, Gorilla Jones, Ben Jeby and Len Harvey ahead of him, in that order . . . . . And the new rating list of the National Boxing Association ranks Tony Herrera, the Mexican flash, who is a big favorite here, as the third best junior-welterweight boxer in the world, with Tony Canzoneri, the champion, first, and Jack (Kid) Berg, whom Tony recently dethroned, second. . . . . Herrera boxes Berg in New York next Friday night and a victory will give him second place.

Jim Lindsey, former Pirate pitching recruit, now with the St. Louis Cardinals, is glad no more Waners are making good in the big leagues . . . He has a wholesome regard for them . . . "Only the other day, that young Lloyd Waner made a hit off me after the ball had gone past him," he said, in discussing them . . . . "He hit the ball on top, as if he were driving a nail, and it bounced over my head, and, when I looked around, he was streaking over first base . . . And as for his big brother, Paul, he's just bad news, that's all." . . . Paul Waner was broadcasting a speech from a St. Louis radio station during the recent Pirate series there and was a bit flustered and ill at ease . . . Lindsey was in the gathering around him and piped up so all could hear, "Just put a bat in his hands and make him feel at home!"—HARRY KECK.

National Steel Record Is Outstanding

By GEORGE H. SNYDER

COMPLETE COMPILATION of first quarter earnings of the principal steel companies of the United States shows that a sharp decline in profits was reported by each of the organizations and that only one company was able to earn common dividend requirements for the period.

National Steel Corporation with net profit of 89 cents a share against quarterly dividend requirements of only 50 cents a share has emerged as the outstanding figure in the industry as a result of this remarkable showing. Comparative figures for the first quarter of 1930 are not available. It is quite certain that this organization earned less than a year ago but the decline does not appear to have been proportionately as great as that suffered by its principal competitors.

National Steel Corporation also achieved the distinction of being the only large steel organization to cover its dividends in the fourth quarter of last year. For the full year of 1930 the company earned $3.91 a share on its common stock which was nearly twice its dividend requirements.

New Plants Completed

EXCEPTIONALLY LOW OPERATING costs, thoroughly modern plants, the acquisition of new subsidiaries and the completion of new plants probably have been the chief contributing factors to the results reported by National. The corporation was formed early in 1930 by the merger of Weirton Steel, Great Lakes Steel and the ore and blast furnace properties of the M. A. Hanna Company.

Later it acquired the Michigan Steel Corporation, operations of which were closely tied up with National's new plants in the Detroit district. The organization is in an exceptionally strong strategical position, being the only large maker of steel with important plants in Detroit. The company recently spent large sums for new facilities in that district as well as at Weirton. This expanded the range of products and made National a completely integrated producer.

Earnings Compared

U. S. Steel	$6,765,057	.05	$35,777,807	$3.44
Jones & Laughlin	*190,982	...	3,555,009	4.38
Inland Steel	633,873	.52	2,721,318	2.26

*Loss.

It will be noted that of the 10 companies, whose earnings have been listed, five operated at a loss during the first quarter of this year. The remaining five were able to report earnings available for the common stock, but four of these failed to cover dividend requirements. In the cases of two of the organizations, comparisons with last year were not available.

Bethlehem Increases Reserves

IN CONNECTION WITH the earnings of Bethlehem Steel, it is worth noting that this was one of the few companies which made increased charges for depreciation and depletion. These higher charges were only partly due to the acquisition of McClintic-Marshall Company early in the year. Bethlehem's deduction for these reserves amounted to $3,767,581 for the three months, an increase of $160,610 over last year. Among the other companies which reduced their charges for these reserves were United States Steel, Jones & Laughlin and Inland Steel.

NEW YORK BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, May 4.—After opening firm the bond market developed some irregularity today. Price changes were marked by their narrowness and most groups lacked a definite trend.

EVENING SUN-TELEGRAPH MARKETS

Stocks Advance — Local Market Narrow

STOCK MARKET LIST WORKS HIGHER

Industrials, Utilities and Some Rails Gain Point Or Two; Steel Advances

NEW YORK, May 4.—(AP.)—Wall street appeared to have regained its nerve over the week-end, and share prices worked higher in quiet trading today, despite isolated heaviness of the coppers.

The better feeling engendered by the climatic upturn of Thursday appeared to be spreading once more after the setback it received when the market broke against late Friday and closed the past week with uncertain fluctuations.

Issues selling up a point or two embraced a substantial assortment of industrials and utilities, and some of the rails. Bears did some experimental selling of U. S. Steel and American Can for a time in the morning but got nowhere with it. Steel gained moderately.

The death over the week-end of George F. Baker was not unsettling to the financial markets, for although he wielded a power comparable to that of the late J. Pierpont Morgan, Wall street was convinced that a banker of Mr. Baker's acumen must have left his estate in such condition that extensive liquidation would be unnecessary to settlement. The stock market has recovered from its habit of a generation ago of getting nervous on news of deaths of great financiers.

Heaviness of the copper shares reflected news of considerable demoralization of the market for red metal and the annual report of Anaconda, showing a deficit of about $24,000,000 after payment of common dividends and the setting up of reserves against the drop in prices of inventories. Copper has finally dropped below the 36-year low price of 9½ cents, established last autumn. Custom smelters are asking only 9¼, and some metal has sold at 9 cents.

The sharp setback late Friday after the apparent selling climax of Wednesday and Thursday had followed so suddenly as to cause misgivings but in important banking circles it is stated quite emphatically that troublesome matters have been generally smoothed out and that the Friday setback was in part a maneuver of bears to cover their commitments at less costly levels. The weekly advices of the statistical services, however, were inclined to look for an irregular market.

Call money was again firm at 1½ per cent, presumably reflecting the return to the banks of month-end settlement checks.

BAKER STOCKS INTACT

NEW YORK, May 4.—The death of George F. Baker will not cause any liquidation of his extensive corporate holdings. It is understood that long before his death Mr. Baker prepared for the event and the subsequent disposal of his estate. It is generally understood that the largest part of his estate has been deeded over to his family.

One who has been for many years in close association with Mr. Baker said it may be taken for granted that for the past 20 years Mr. Baker has made provision for the disposal of his estate so as to provide the least disturbance in his holdings.

Look for Motor Trade to Lead Recovery

WASHINGTON, May 4.—A degree of encouragement to business was seen today in the latest automobile production tabulation.

This industry, government officials believe, is the logical one to lead business out of the depression. Latest reports to the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce show the output for the third week of April rose to the highest weekly figure for the year to date, with production of around 76,000 cars. The present weekly average is approximately double the output when the industry was scraping bottom last year.

Stock Exchange Topics

Intensive Advertising Boosting Sales of Tobacco Firms.

Although stocks of the leading cigaret makers have suffered at times recently during the periods of general selling in the market there is said to have been quiet scale accumulation on the decline in some of the issues. The buying was based on the theory that the intensive advertising campaigns of the various companies have increased their sales volumes and in the long run that will increase net earnings for the various stocks.

Despite the reduction in the Illinois Central dividend, authorities on railroad securities are confident that Union Pacific this year will show earnings considerably in excess of the current dividend rate of $10 a share. It is contended that the prospective tonnage of steel, cement and other materials for the Boover dam construction which will be transported over the Union Pacific will benefit the earnings in the future.

Market interests who often have been well informed on the affairs of du Pont state that the business of the company has shown a moderate improvement thus far in the second quarter. It is said that four of the company's eight main lines are running somewhat ahead of last year, notably the cellophane and rayon divisions. The other four are lagging, including lines of explosives, which should pick up if building improves.

Some of the selling which came into American Can a day or two ago was based on the belief in some quarters that tin plate production had seen its high for this year. Naturally, this was looked upon as a reflection of lessened activity on the part of the can makers, due to a smaller demand for containers. Authorities in the steel industry maintain that no one is in a position to state that tin plate output has reached its peak for 1931. Some of them are confident that there will be a steady demand for the product from can makers throughout the year.

U. S. Realty's rental business is reported to have remained stable, but earnings of the company have been affected by the lowered receipts from the hotel operations. Costs of operating the hotels have been curtailed to a considerable extent by increased efficiency and economies. However, transients are said to be seeking lower priced accommodations, and that has reduced revenues.

Kroger was one of the exceptions to the general downward trend early this week. Between March 28 and April 29, when industrial averages lost 30.45 points, the stock has shown practically no change in price after minor fluctuations. Some interests contend that the current earnings of the company are better than anticipated in many quarters. Although no quarterly results are published, estimates in the Street have indicated that 80 cents a share was earned in the first three months.

1930 Steel Ingot Production Down

NEW YORK, May 4.—Production of steel ingots and castings in 1930 declined to 40,699,483 gross tons, from 56,433,473 gross tons in 1929, the American Iron and Steel Institute reports. Production of steel ingots alone amounted to 39,595,268 gross tons last year, compared with 54,850,433 gross tons in 1929.

Norfolk & Western Hearing Date Set

WASHINGTON, May 4.—The Interstate Commerce Commission has set for hearing on June 1 proceedings in the excess earnings recapture case of the Norfolk and Western Railway for presentation of evidence in support of the road's protest against these findings.

Corn Products Suit Under Advisement

CHICAGO, May 4.—U. S. District Judge W. C. Lindley has taken under advisement the suit brought by Pollock & Ford, Ltd., against Corn Products Refining Company for alleged infringement of patents covering a starch milling process.

Memoirs of Marshal Foch

state of affairs which assuredly you know better than anybody else, since as commander-in-chief of the Allied Armies, you are necessarily the first to suffer from its consequences.

"We have talked too often and at too great a length concerning the employment of the American troops for it to be necessary to revert to the subject today, even in the most summary fashion.

"You have watched at close range the development of Gen. Pershing's whims; unfortunately thanks to his invincible obstinacy, he has won against your immediate subordinates. To go over all this again can only lead to useless regrets.

"You are in the midst of the action, so that past events and mere words are out of place here. What matters is the immense battle now going on, a battle which you have conducted in such a way as to place you in the front rank of great captains.

"It is this battle in its present stage that I am now thinking of, in the hope of furnishing you the military means of bringing to a magnificent conclusion the sucession of glorious feats of arms with which your name will be forever associated.

"Constitutionally I am the head of the French army.

"The interests of this army lie only too obviously in the parallel organization of all the troops under your command.

"I would be a criminal if I allowed the French army to wear itself out indefinitely in battle without doing everything in my power to insure that an Allied army which has hurried to its aid was rendered capable of fulfilling the military role for which it is destined.

Americans Mark Time

"The French army and the British army, without a moment's letup, have been daily fighting, for the last three months, battles which are using them up at a time when it is impossible for us to reinforce them immediately with fresh effectives.

"These two armies are pressing back the enemy with an ardor that excites world-wide admiration; but our worthy American allies, who thirst to get into action and who are unanimously acknowledged to be great soldiers, have been marking time ever since their forward jump on the first day.

"In spite of heavy losses, they have failed to conquer the ground assigned them as their objective. Nobody can maintain that these fine troops are unusable; they are merely unused.

"One does not have to be a technician in order to understand that the immobility of your right wing cannot possibly be a part of your plan and that you have lost—no matter how favorably other things may have turned out — the benefit of movements which through lack of organization have not been effected.

"I am aware of all the efforts you have made to overcome the resistance of Gen. Pershing; indeed, it is because you have omitted nothing in the way of persuasion that I cannot shirk the duty of asking myself whether after the failure of fruitless conversations, the time has not come for changing methods.

Hits at Disobedience

"When Gen. Pershing refused to obey your orders you could have appealed to President Wilson. For reasons which you considered more important, you put off this solution of the conflict, fearing that it would bring reactions of a magnitude which you thought it difficult to gauge.

"I took the liberty of differing with you. You had a right to think that I was resorting too hastily to a radical solution of the problem. You wished to prolong the experience.

"Now that I have learned, however, that you have taken in hand the direct command of Gen. Pershing's troops, I cannot refrain from feeling that this trial should be the last of those we have been compelled to undergo.

"I ardently wish your success, and it may come, provided it is possible for you, through some miracle, to combine the separate direction of one army with the general conduct along comprehensive lines of the Allied Armies as a whole.

"I think that it will not take long for you to make up your mind on this subject. If Gen. Pershing finally resigns himself to obedience, if he accepts the advice of capable generals, whose presence at their side he has until now permitted only that he might reject their counsels, I shall be wholly delighted.

"But if this new attempt to reconcile two contrary points of view should not bring the advantageous results you anticipate, I must say to you that, in my opinion, any further hesitation should be out of the question. For it would then be certainly high time to tell President Wilson the truth and the whole truth concerning the situation of the American troops. Indeed, neither you nor I have the right to conceal it from him.

Greatly Concerned

"The President of the United States has frequently declared that he was ready to conform to your judgment in all military questions. He will undoubtedly appraise at their true value, as he ought to do, both the patience you have so long shown and the decisions to which you have finally been led.

"Whether you share my opinion or form a different one, you will certainly agree with me in recognizing that this state of affairs cannot continue any longer. For this reason I would be glad if you could find it possible to send me an early answer.

"The reason why I have deemed it my duty to offer you these observations is that, in the present circumstances, the responsibility of the French government and of the constitutional head of the French armies is no less directly involved than is your own. I feel sure that you cannot misinterpret the sentiment which inspires me, and I hope you will do justice to my motives, as I do to yours.

"CLEMENCEAU."

Having a more comprehensive knowledge of the difficulties encountered by the American Army, I could not acquiesce in the radical solution contemplated by M Clemenceau. Not wishing, however, to start a discussion of this subject with the French Prime Minister, I confined myself to maintaining my orders and to answering him on October 23, as follows:

Praises Americans

(Marshal Foch's table showing the distribution of the American forces appears here with in another column.)

"As shown by the table, of the 30 divisions fit for battle, 10 are distributed among the Allied armies (French and British) and 20 are under Gen. Pershing's orders, constituting the autonomous American Army.

"I count upon maintaining these two lots, differing in their nature, and the existence of which I consider necessary for various reasons.

"I also contemplate varying the proportion between the two according to circumstances, increasing the 10 and diminishing the 20, whenever operations being prepared permit it.

"It is by manipulation of this sort that I expect to diminish the weakness of the high command, rather than by orders. These I shall give, to be sure, but may not perhaps be able to carry them out, since, to do so, would require staffs having the necessary experience. Moreover, this crisis is of the sort which all improvised armies suffer, and which always considerably impairs their effectiveness at the start.

"But there is no denying the magnitude of the effort made by the American Army. After attacking at Saint-Mihiel on September 12 it attacked in the Argonne on the 26th. From September 26 to October 20 its losses in battle were 54,158 men—in exchange for small gains on a narrow front, it is true, but over particularly difficult terrain and in the face of serious resistance by the enemy."

Objectives Set Forth

At the same time, with a view to hastening as much as possible the resumption of the combined offensive of the French 4th Army and the American 1st Army, and in order to render their progress easier, I drew up, on October 21, a general instruction, setting forth the objectives to be attained and the methods to be employed in reaching them:

"For the purpose of assuring close co-operation between the American 1st Army and the French 4th Army, it is advisable to observe the following:

"The general aim of the combined operations of the American 1st Army and the right wing of the French 4th Army is to reach the region of Buzancy (for the 1st American Army), Le Chesne (for the French 4th Army), in order to unblock the line of the Aisne from the east.

"The operations which up to the present these armies have been conducting in the region of Olizy-Grandpre, north of Saint-Juvin, have resulted in assuring complete liaison between them through the defile of Grandpre and permitting the American Army to debouch from the wooded region which had hampered its first movements.

"Now that this first indispensable result has been obtained, the combined attacks of these armies should have as their object to reach the goal fixed for them—Buzancy-Le Chesne—by turning from the west and from the east the wooded heights of the Argonne by movements of wider scope; this will obviate exhausting the troops by fighting in the woods, which is costly, and of little value.

Necessary Action

"To accomplish this, the following is necessary:

"(1) That the American 1st Army prepare and execute without the least delay a powerful attack in the direction of Boult-aux-Bois, Buzancy and the Bois de la Folie, for this taking advantage of the wide opening conquered by, it north of the Bois des Loges and of Romagne, while avoiding getting engaged in combats in the woods of the Argonne and of the Bantheville region.

"Nothing but an attack of this amplitude will enable it to reach its objectives.

"(2) That the French 4th Army, maintaining through Grandpre only its liaison with the American Army, [illegible] and in strong force through Vouziers against Quatre Champs, and, by way of Vandy and Terron and farther north, against Les Alleux; likewise toward Le Chesne, resolutely widening its attacks.

"The attention of the general commanding the American Army and of the general commanding the central group of armies is invited to the above instructions which have as their purpose both to enlarge the sphere of action of each of these armies and to assure the convergence of their efforts upon the objectives assigned."

PREMIER CLEMENCEAU

France's premier whose letter to Marshal Foch demanding removal of Gen. Pershing from command of the U. S. A. E. F. appears in the accompanying installment of Foch's memoirs.

BULLARD ANSWERS 'TIGER'S' ATTACK

Commenting on Clemenceau's letter published herewith, Gen. Robert Lee Bullard, who commanded the American 3rd Army Corps, in the Meuse-Argonne offensive until mid-October, when Gen. Pershing made him a Lieutenant-General and head of the 2nd Army, east of the Meuse River, made this statement.

"In the Meuse-Argonne district the French had tried again and again to gain without success.

"The American 1st Army, under Gen. Pershing's direct command, and later when directed by Gen. Liggett, HAD gained, though progress was slow, and pauses for reorganizing were necessary before each major effort.

"Here before the American Army was the hinge of the door. Here the successive lines of defense were put a few miles apart, whereas westward, along the Franco-British front, the outer swing of the door, which was the German line in France, the situation was quite different.

"If the Allies broke a defense line the Boche retreated or could retreat MANY miles to the next line of hill, or behind the next large river where trench systems or other defensive positions were prepared. But at the hinge, when our men broke one defense system, they were immediately up against another.

"Moreover, unless Germany could defend the Meuse-Argonne line, the gateway to France through Sedan would be closed before she could remove her troops.

"Germany amassed troops on the American front, therefore, and the resistance before the Allies was correspondingly weakened. Foch knew this well enough.

"Fighting so desperately that we were using up the German reserves, we were making it possible for Poilu and Tommy, further west, to push the Boche from thousands of square miles of Clemenceau's beloved France—but it appears now that the stubborn old Tiger of France was ignorant of that part or else shut his eyes to it."

ANDREE DEATH STAYS MYSTERY

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, May 4.—(AP)—Completion of the deciphering of Salomon Andree's second diary has terminated the possibility of further interpretation, in the opinion of Prof. Ahlmann, one of the experts engaged in the task.

He said in relation to the documents, which were found with the bodies of the members of the Andree Arctic balloon expedition of 1897:

THE SECRET SIX -:- By Frances Marion

Scorpio Is Put on Trial In Murder Case

It was the third day of Scorpio's trial on the charge of Hank's murder. Eager crowds thronged the courtroom. Armed police guarded every entrance and hallway, as Newton and the district attorney battled for the life of the gangster.

His eyes roved over the crowd. He noticed Carl, sitting with tense face at the press table. Donlin, grim and forbidding, in the first spectators' row. Somewhere in that crowd, he knew, sat the mysterious Secret Six. How he'd like to bump them all off!

Metz Questioned

"Yes, sir. He always carried it. Called it his lucky rod, because he never missed with it."

"Did Scorpio tell you to kill Colimo with it?"

"Objection overruled," was the staccato interruption from the bench. The district attorney continued:

"After the murder did you hand the gun back to Scorpio?"

"Yes."

Newton rose and caught the witness' gaze with his cold, flinty eye. "Just a few questions," he murmured.

"No! I don't want to talk to him! I won't! Let me down!" screamed the gangster. The judge interrupted sharply:

"You worked for Mr. Colimo once?" inquired Newton.

"Yes—he fired me—for no reason."

"How did Mr. Scorpio find out you were not really a deaf mute?"

"One day I lost my temper and called him a—"

"Was that the first time he heard you speak? What did he say?"

"He asked me what my racket was."

"He meant that no man pretends to be a deaf-mute unless he's hiding out, didn't he, Dummy Hagen?"

"That's not my name."

"No—you're right. That's not your name. Your real name is Eddie Fink, alias the Dummy. Did you ever tell Mr. Scorpio you had a prison record?"

"No—I didn't—that's a lie."

"Did you ever tell him you served a term in Leavenworth prison for defrauding the mails—that you served a term in San Quentin for robbery and assault with a deadly weapon?"

"I never told him anything of the kind."

"No—it's obvious you don't remember his many kindnesses. Your honor, if I may suggest it, I think it would be a very wise move on the part of the police department to investigate the criminal history of this Eddie Fink, alias Hagen, alias Metz."

Threatens Scorpio

"Don't send me back—it's a lie!" he screamed. "Don't send me back to prison! I tell you Scorpio gave me the gun! I can prove it! He was going to give me two thousand bucks for it!"

Metz glared at Scorpio.

"I'll get you! I'll get you!" He screamed as he was dragged toward the prison corridor entrance.

"How long have you known Mr. Scorpio?" the attorney demanded.

"About four years."

"When that gangster was murdered there four years ago? You were employed by Mr. Franks then?"

"Yes."

"Did you know Hank Rogers?"

"Yes."

"Weren't you engaged to him?"

"Well, sort of."

"And at that time you were accepting money, weren't you, from Mr. Scorpio, to encourage Mr. Rogers—am I right?"

The girl hung her head. Her "yes" was scarcely audible. The court reporter asked her to repeat it.

"Yes."

"Twenty thousand a year."

Newton Triumphant

"You were at Mr. Scorpio's when you claim you overhead his threat against Hank Rogers?"

"Yes, I was."

"Drove there is your limousine that Mr. Scorpio gave you?"

A humble nod from Anne.

"I was never engaged to Mr. Scorpio! I loathed him! I despised him!"

Newton was triumphant. His smile was sarcastic. "I'm sorry if I said anything to upset you, Anne. To have to accept gifts aggregating a hundred thousand dollars from a man you loathe and despise naturally puts one in a very unhappy frame of mind. Please accept my apologies." And then his smirk deepening. "You say you had been engaged to Hank Rogers. Did you ever express any affection for him?"

"Yes—I loved him—I wasn't ashamed to say that I loved him! That's why I warned him—and if he—"

"That's all for the present!" Newton cried sharply. The weeping girl left the witness stand.

Scorpio, his face distorted with rage, leaned over to whisper to Eddie. "Follow that tramp. Send two of the boys after her. I am going to have something to say to that dish that'll make her hair turn gray."

Eddie smiled. He knew.

"—and hurry back. Maybe we'll have to shoot our way out of this bird cage."

Newton turned toward the jury, and slowly walked to the rail. Speaking in an almost confidential tone, he turned his gaze from one to the other.

"The last witness," he remarked, "unconsciously revealed one of Mr. Scorpio's finest traits—an unselfish generosity. And you have heard the testimony of other witnesses, showing that Mr. Scorpio has given more than half a million dollars to private and public charities, with never a thought of praise or publicity.

Address Jury

"But, like many a kind man who has given freely, he has been disillusioned and betrayed. Take, for example, Metz, that filthy rat. Are we willing to accept the testimony of a thug, ready to sacrifice the life of an innocent man to save his own neck?

"I trust you gentlemen of the jury will not make an error of judgment in this case. It has been attempted to prove Mr. Scorpio a blackguard, a hoodlum, and a public enemy. And yet I can prove to you, gentlemen, that he is a legitimate established business man.

"Are we to believe the sneaking Metz, posing as a deaf-mute for years to escape prison—biting the hand that generously fed him?

"Are we to believe a woman who accepted thousands of dollars in gifts and favors from the man she says she despised, though she pretended to regard to wrest money from him?

"You are all men of intelligence and discernment, and I am sure you will accept the testimony that has been introduced, beyond intelligent dispute—and reject the evidence dragged in here to attempt to blast a man's life—evidence from the scum of our city.

"That is all.

(To Be Continued Tomorrow.)

Watch for 'Five and Ten'

Everyone will want to read Fannie Hurst's best story, "Five and Ten," which begins in the Sun-Telegraph next Thursday—following the closing chapter of "The Secret Six." John Rarick sold his goods for nickels and dimes. With his millions in profits he wrecked his family, and almost wrecked his daughter's life. Watch for this brilliant, inside-story of the ravage of sudden wealth.

DAILY TRUE STORY 'Life Is Like That'

Professor's Proposal Is Accepted by Woman

He replaced them where they would best aid his eyesight and peered down the wide veranda of the Seaside House.

"Yes," he said, to himself.

A moment before he had seen a woman come out and occupy one of the veranda rockers. He thought that he recognized her. He thought the woman to be Miss Cornelia Wescott, of the faculty of Kendover College, a co-educational institution.

And so, his vision enhanced by removing some dried salt spray from his spectacles, he could see that he had been right.

The professor went over to Miss Westcott and bowed.

Strange how the smile changed her. She was rather pretty when she smiled. The professor noticed this.

"Ah," said the professor, bowing, "I thought I recognized you, Miss Westcott."

Professor Lonesome

If Prof. Hawthorne had possessed a modern education he would have said, "Horsefeathers."

But he wasn't that far advanced.

"Nonsense," was what he said.

He sat down beside her. They chatted politely for a while. The professor talked because he was rather lonesome. Miss Cornelia Wescott talked, at first, because she knew that the professor was an authority along certain lines at the publishing house where two of her volumes on geology had been issued. The manuscript of a third volume was already there. It wouldn't do any harm to be friendly with him.

A half hour later she was talking with him because he was entertaining.

That evening the professor, who had been at the Seaside House a week, went down and looked into the so-called ballroom. It was the first time he had peered in. He didn't dance. But he thought that Miss Wescott might be there.

She was not. He went up to his rooms and settled down to go through some submitted manuscripts. As it was a busy season in the publishing house, this was the only way he could get a few weeks' vacation.

"I usually walk across the point and back every afternoon. I find that it is helpful. The distance over and back is four miles; do you think you are equal to it, Miss Wescott, and would you care to go with me?"

Cornelia Wescott knew that she was equal to it—and she wanted to go.

She told about her classes at Kendover and regretted that so few of the students were really interested in the course.

Cornelia Embarrassed

"Life," agreed the professor, "is like that. So few seem to care for the things that really matter. The trivial things, the transitory pleasures seem to come first."

She deftly led the conversation around to his publishing house. He talked of many things but gave her no information concerning her third manuscript there, other than to say that it was in the process of consideration.

"We do not," he told her, "publish the trivial things. We boast of none of these flashes-in-the-pan called best sellers.

They went on through the short cut, taking them over a wooded ridge of pines and down to the ledges on the other side of the point.

Near to them two heads appeared. The head of a young man, a gay, attractive young man, apparently, from the looks of his tanned cheeks, smiling face and tawny hair.

"Had we ought to go on?" she asked, in a whisper.

The heads turned and rested one against the other. The two seemed to be very intent on something.

Become Very Friendly

They were in bathing suits—very economically made suits, as to material. The young man had a stick and was doing some sand writing. He had drawn a heart and was putting initials inside.

Prof. Hawthorne and Miss Wescott glanced down, smiled softly at each other and went on without disturbing the lovers.

"Life," Miss Wescott said, "is like that."

"Perhaps, later, for them. I meant like that, back there—the lovers."

"Oh yes, that is one phase of life—it has been going on ever since the cave man found that he could win a more desirable mate with kisses than with a club."

Miss Wescott laughed gaily at this.

During the three weeks that ensued Prof. Hawthorne and Cornelia were extremely friendly. They played tennis fairly well, they discussed things academic extremely well, and the professor went so far as to assure Cornelia that when her manuscript came to him for final approval, all would be well, and he had already read it, unofficially.

They parted extremely good friends.

When Cornelia's third text book on geology was out she wrote to the professor, who was the editor in charge of the text book division of the concern, and thanked him.

The following summer Prof. Hawthorne had to make a business trip to London. He did not appear at the Seaside House until a week after he had reserved his rooms. But they were kept for him.

Her classes, for the most part, were literally dragged through the geology course, while his publishing house continued to be content with small but steady sales instead of third-printing-in-30-days novels that finally died out and were forgotten.

There they were, their heads, at least.

See Same Couple

They crept down the path noiselessly and looked.

But there was no heart drawn in the sand, this time, no initials. What they saw in the shade of the ledge on the sand, between the young couple, was a blanket and an infant, seemingly not much more than two months old, kicking its pink feet and smiling damply!

"Yes, indeed, Cornelia," he said, "life is like that. I'm going to shock you—I think it's great."

"I think it is wonderful," Cornelia agreed.

He turned and kissed her.

"Why can't we make our lives like that, dear girl?"

No Taxes Just Now

County Treasurer Awaits Legislation Before Making Collections.

It is an unusual situation when one may not pay taxes, yet that is just what you can't do now in the county treasurer's office if the tax desired to be paid is that of 1931. May, June and July are discount months on county taxes, but John Francies, county treasurer, is deferring collection pending ing the disposition of legislaton on taxation. This includes a proposed flat 50-cent poll tax instead of the graded occupational tax in force at present.

That ought to make for honesty in the declaration of occupation. More "laborers" are classified in the assessment lists than bank presidents. Of course, there are more, but if everybody listed as laborer really were one, what a lot of horny-handed sons of toil we should be! And, likely, better men!

However, the fact remains—nothing is surer than death and taxes. Your money will not be forever refused by Mr. Francies.

No New Grade Crossings

Harris Bills Aimed to Check Death Toll Deserve Speedy Approval.

If legislatures ever pass anything unanimously, the bills aimed at grade crossings by Senator Frank Harris, of Allegheny County, should receive that distinction. These two measures, to be introduced tonight in the State Senate, would prohibit the building of a road across a railway track or a railway track across any established road at grade level.

Surely the day has gone when any weight can be attached to the plea that a rapidly growing country can't afford to wait to protect its crossings. If this ever were true, the very presence of such great traffic on our highways nowadays must prove its falsity now.

The contribution of a hundred million dollars by New York railroads to equal New York State's bond issue of the same amount to protect and eliminate crossings indicates that the railroads have no hostility to the movement.

It seems silly to believe that any one would oppose remedial legislation in a state where only 18 per cent of its 1,200 grade crossings are said to be protected; where 200 persons are killed and 500 are hurt each year.

Let Mothers' Day Alone

Proposal to Combine It With Another Is Lacking In Sentiment.

Suggestion is made for a new "day" that would lessen the "days" we now have by one. It is that Mothers' Day, which will be observed next Sunday, and Fathers' Day, observed in June, be combined as Parents' Day. And that its significance be that of the rearing and care of children.

There will be objections. First, because the name, Parents' Day, isn't a bit sentimental. Mothers' Day, especially, denotes a fine and worthy sentiment, that of paying a tribute of love to mothers of the land. Although the same feeling toward our daddies is behind Fathers' Day, it seems less appropriate. We love mother and are not ashamed to admit it. We love dad, but it sort of makes him ill to be told about it—so we give him a necktie or some cigars without too much show of sentimentality.

Mothers' Day can be properly sentimental and, anyway, isn't just a little unbecoming to suggest that there should be a particular day when she and dad should be thinking especially about the children? When doesn't she think of them?

No—let Mothers' Day alone. Let them do anything they like with Fathers' Day—he probably would prefer that we do anything with it than continue it—but do not disturb the sanctity of Mothers' Day.

Many at Boulder Dam

The Sun-Telegraph has received numerous communications from readers relative to the addresses of contractors for Boulder Dam construction and other information of a nature indicating that the writers were in search of employment.

The situation has become such that the State Department of Labor and Industry has taken notice of it, and all superintendents of state employment offices have been notified to tell all inquirers that the labor supply at Boulder Dam site greatly exceeds the supply.

The United States employment service has established an office at Las Vegas, Nevada, the town nearest the site of Boulder Dam, but it is reported there already are more than 2,000 unemployed men in the vicinity awaiting a chance for work.

There probably will be work at Boulder Dam for persons who are not there now, but it would be folly to go to Las Vegas without definite prospects.

They Never Grow Up

Until They Die.

Short news item from England:

"The 9,000-ton steamer Orita, in service between Liverpool and South America for 30 years, has been condemned. Instead of turning her over to the shipbreakers, the company will send her to the coast of Lancashire, raise her flag, and drive her full speed ahead onto the rocks. A skeleton crew will make the preparations for her 'death trip' and leave in small boats as she heads for the shore."

The company might make more money out of the hulk by breaking it up in the orthodox way. But there is a trace of the small boy even in grave and dignified directors of corporations. You may guess that several from this company will be on hand to see the smash.

Even Thomas Alva Edison is said to have the secret ambition of throwing an egg into the whirling blades of an electric fan. But, of course, he is only 84. In time, he may grow up.

ROCKNE, THE SCIENTIST

By Archibald Henderson

The impressive outburst of popular regret and admiration for the late Knute Rockne, famous Notre Dame football coach, killed in a plane wreck, has a significance worthy of general consideration. The significance does not lie solely in the likable qualities of the man, his splendid manhood, his powers of psychology and leadership, his personal popularity and appeal. The cause lies deeper than this, namely his extraordinary mastery in the science and technique of the most stirring of American sports.

Rockne's record as a coach of successful teams, and at a single institution, stands unrivaled, it appears, in the annals of American sport. Had he moved on from college to college, from university to university, everywhere coaching high-powered teams, slated for a series of unbroken victories, his record would have been wonderful enough. But it is all the more wonderful, in that he remained at the same institution and continued to turn out, year after year, teams of exceptional competence and rare efficiency. Five of these teams went through a season undefeated. Some were among the best in the history of American football.

The genuine secret of Rockne's success as a coach may be given in the one word: science. His career is an impressive demonstration of the power of science as applied to sport. Generalship, sympathy for a defeated adversary, high ideals of sportsmanship, ready wit and understanding of the human factors in the game; none of these, nor all of these combined, could have produced the results which he achieved. He achieved success, very often amazing and spectacular success, by certain principles which were, in the highest degree, scientific.

Rockne's fundamental principle was that there is such a thing as a "perfect play;" and that only such plays can bring unbroken success. The essence of the perfect play was a play which, no matter where executed, will score a touchdown. In such a play, everyone involved in the play must play his part to perfection. If there was a single error, a single screw loose in the mechanism, the play was a failure, although considerable ground might be gained. The opposition might succeed in stopping the play by pulling one of the bolts out of the mechanism. Every pin was a king pin; no one's part in the play was insignificant. Everything depended upon exact co-ordination: in individual action, mass technique, and correct timing.

Rockne never developed any enormous number of new plays; nor did he care for trick plays, which took an opponent off guard. His strategy was not to wait until his team had worked its way deep into the enemy's territory, and then unmask some surprise play, held in reserve, in order to engineer a victory. It is true that he developed to a high degree of finish the forward pass and the shift; but they were features of his tactics, not basic elements of his strategy.

Victory in football he realized, not as the result of magic, but as the inevitable result of scientific technique. Endless work, unceasing drill in the elements, co-operative practice—until the perfect play was achieved. Then it was a perpetual scientific menace to all adversaries at all times.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

Should a man who has worked at the union scale of $8 be willing now to take $4? Or should he remain idle and "fight for his rights?"

And suppose he does—what happens at home? Who pays for his "magnificent gesture?" There's the other side of it, that "A Disgusted Wife" is presenting today. Here's how it started—

A contractor inserted this ad in a morning paper: "CARPENTERS—5—ROUGH WORK; MUST BE FAST WORKERS—$4 A DAY. APPLY AT ..... JONES ST."

The next mail brought a flock of letters protesting against this "grasping capitalist." Sounded interesting. I went out to see. He didn't look either grasping or capitalistic. A tired, bent workingman, wiping the sweat from a worried brow as he stopped to answer questions. The gist of his answer being—

"Yes, I suppose it does make 'em sore to have to take $4 after they've worked themselves up to $8 or $9. But it's as hard on me as it is on them. I can't get my old price for my jobs, either. Times have changed. Useless for me to try 'n' buck it. What's better—shut up shop, then all of us will starve? Or keep on going, paying as much as I can?"

Plenty of men asking those questions—and no answer yet. Millions of dollars locked up in banks. And, along every highway, idle men marching in ceaseless, desperate file. Whose fault is it? Fault of union workers who won't pay old time wages when the new time market is cut in half? But how long will they be employers if they do? And meantime, at home . . . listen.

"Dear Elsie Robinson:

"I read that article you wrote about the man who offered $4 for carpenters. Maybe you'll think I'm funny, seeing that I'm the wife of a union man, but I certainly wanted to get in on that argument and tell a few facts to those workers who won't accept $4. I guess it's time us wives spoke up—especially wives like me who see their children half starving. And believe me there are plenty of us.

"My husband is in the Building Trades. He is out of work, the children and I are without clothes and shoes, and yet he has turned down several jobs because they only paid $4. Last night he had some of his pals in and one of them, a bricklayer, thought it was a huge joke because he could loaf on his job while getting paid for it. Is it any wonder that people with a little money are afraid to have work done? Why don't the Building Trades men realize that some of the people they work for are just as poor as themselves?

"I have a sister who has six children. Her husband is now doing a job that earns him $3 a day, with his meals. The man he is working for only earns $5 himself. Yet, Elsie, you should see my sister's nice little home. When my brother-in-law comes home he doesn't sit down and complain about his lot or boast about the big union wages he used to get. He works around his house and garden and they look like a million. Their children are well fed and decently dressed, while ours are without the plain necessities.

"How I wish we women could get into the building trades. Believe me, a woman who watches her children starving isn't going to hold up business just because, once upon a time, she got a higher wage. SHE'LL TAKE WHAT SHE CAN GET AND KEEP THINGS GOING.

"A Disgusted Wife."

Well, there you have three sides of it. The employer's side . . . the workingman's side . . . the wife's side—what's the answer? I don't know. DO YOU?

These Lacked Opportunity

They Once Lived and Loved in Their Own Queer Way.

The picture shows a family group on the edge of a big swamp in Texas long ago. TWO HUNDRED AND FIFTEEN MILLION YEARS AGO, to be exact. This is no imaginary picture, we assure you. These strange animals, carrying on their backs fin-like appendages, which are really abnormal growths of the backbone, lived just as you see them here.

Scientists dug them up and restored them, as in this reproduction of Mr. Charles Knight's fine painting in Chicago's Field Museum. The scientists that found them in Texas' Pimian deposits named them Naosaurus.

How strange to reflect that animals such as these, or lower in the scale, were once the only inhabitants of our fair earth. The mastodon, with long tusks; the saber-tooth tiger, and man, our ancestor, who ran away from the tiger and hamstrung the mammoth, came much later, probably not more than 40,000,000 years ago.

Sad, dreary were the lives of these monsters. Life was one long struggle. But slow evolution was at work, and, in the night of time, man was waiting to emerge and say: "All this earth is mine."

Count the toes on the foot of each Naosaurus. You find five. Count your fingers and thumbs, and you find they also number five. Unless evolution is mistaken, your five fingers come from those Pimian five toes, and the spine which has been learning to hold you up straight for the last few million years comes from that queer spine with the imitation fin.

You will find people that want you to work for them, and people that want to work for you.

You will find wonderful real estate opportunities, great bargains in second-hand cars, and even greater bargains, in the proper columns, in brand new cars. You will find auction sales in which "antiques" now sell for what they are really worth. Think of that.

Can you imagine how eagerly the Naosaurus would study those columns if he were alive now and could read? Be grateful that you live in 1931, and not in the Pimian Age.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, May 4.—Diary of a modern Pepys: Up and in a flutter over my new bedside bookcase and arranging in rotation the volumes I desire to read. So to saunter across town with Bernard Sobel, the grammarian, and in this mad motor age we seemed the last of the vanishing flaneurs.

In front of the Nora Bayes Theater came upon Al Jolson, the minstrel, and while chatting, Texas Guinan came along. "You've met Jolson?" I ventured. "Met him?" she replied. "We used to sell medicine together." Homeward, and came upon an ambulance carrying off a poor fellow who fainted gazing at a freak show.

To dinner at the Irvin Cobbs with my wife. And their daughter Buff and husband Steve Brodie there. Also Pat and Rupert Hughes and Rupert and the host in rare conversational form. Late to bed reading William Seabrook's "Jungle Ways" in which he told of eating cooked human flesh, to me quite horrible.

Rupert Hughes was cornered by a professional bore in the lounge of a club the other afternoon. After a long-winded solo about nothing in particular, Hughes finally interjected: "Not so loud. The people at the next table are yawning."

In night libraries of New York, 90 per cent of those who stay in the reading rooms until lights go out are of Jewish faith. Some are middle aged and some shawled and bewigged replicas of those figures in shadowy doorways of the Ghetto. Many elderly couples brought from the old world by successful children attend night schools to adjust themselves and keep in step with the new. In the same fashion and impelled by the common passion of their race, the Yiddish theaters presenting the best plays are thronged.

The new Cloud Club on the sixty-eighth floor of the Chrysler Building has the wealthiest membership of any luncheon organization in town. It has 110 members, and seen there daily are such notables as Charles M. Schwab, Walter Chrysler, Bernard Gimble, Jules Bache and so on. Women are not permitted save on Saturday during the summer months. In one section windows are especially high so lunchers affected by altitude cannot look out.

The loudest noise in New York, according to the Noise Abatement Commission, is that coming through gratings when a subway express roars madly by a local station. Business of changing shirt makers.

Good old Beaunash, of the theater program, can always pinch hit when a columnist is fanning the air. Hear his latest tweedle-de-dee: "Not so long ago town and country clothes overlapped. One could hardly tell one from the other. Out of the welter emerges the correct idea that field and street can never meet any more than East and West in the Kippling ballad. So the Norfolk jacket is by way of being restored to favor. The cap is also on the way up."

One of the legends is that Beaunash is himself a sartorial disappointment. His name as I recall, is Alfred Bryan, and he is nothing of the sort. He is quite the dandy.

"Coco"—as all Paris knows her—Chanel, the dressmaker, burst upon New York and Hollywood like a vivid flame. They found Mlle. Gabrielle the most independent lady visitor of many years, awed by nothing. The Great Garbo means no more in her life than a blue-bloused portier of the pensions. For years she has expressed a quick and somewhat malicious humor with wealthy women who flock to her rue Cambon atelier. She has imposed poverty on grand ladies, forcing them to wear tricots, the clothing of peasants and to store their glittering jewels in safety boxes and wear false ones she devised. She, herself, knew biting poverty in girlhood and as "La Coco Magnifique" there is a hidden and tigrine ferocity behind her purring smile.

Isn't It So?

The trouble with so many opinions is that they are moldy.
